ACCEPT MEDIATION "IN PRINCIPLE"

Huerta's Minister of Foreign Relations Sends a Message More Pacific Than That Sent by Huerta on Monday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Ministry of Foreign Relations, Mexico City, April 28.—To International News Service, New York city: "In principle I accept with pleasure the friendly mediation to which you refer in your message."
"(Signed) LOPEZ PORTILLO."

New York, April 28.—The foregoing dispatch was received by the International News Service today from Senor Lopez Portillo y Rojas, minister of foreign relations in the cabinet of President Huerta of Mexico. It was sent in reply to a message asking whether Mexico would accept mediation by Latin American nations.

The reply of Senor Portillo confirms the announcement made in Washington by Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, that Huerta had accepted "mediation in principle."

It is in marked contrast with the message received by the International News Service from Huerta on Monday. In this Huerta declared: "Mexico will defend its rights trampled upon by the government of the United States."

ST. LOUIS KID ADMITS PERJURY

Negotiations Were Opened With Him in a Poughkeepsie Pool Room And He Was Paid to Testify for the Gummens.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 28.—That a blow has been struck at the defense of ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker in his second trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, through a confession made early this morning by William E. Burwell was the statement made at the office of District Attorney Whitman today.

Burwell, who was arrested in Derby, Ct., was brought to this city, taken before District Attorney Whitman and subjected to a rigorous examination.

The prisoner, who is also known as the "St. Louis Kid," confessed that testimony he had given in an effort to secure a new trial for the four gunmen was false. Burwell is also alleged to have given the name of the person who concocted his story and coached him in its delivery. He admitted receiving money for committing perjury.

According to Burwell's confession he was first approached in a pool room in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., by a man he knew to be a crook. This man said there was a lot of "easy money" to be made for anyone who would go to a little risk for the gunmen. Burwell said he was promised $1,000 but only received part of that sum. He was brought to this city and introduced to a member of the police force. Then he was introduced to a lawyer and it was in a lawyer's office that he was instructed in what he was to say before Justice Goff.

Immediately after the confession had been given the district attorney called up Poughkeepsie on the long distance telephone and gave them a description of the man who had approached Burwell in the pool room. Detectives are hunting for other men connected with the perjury conspiracy.

Mr. Whitman believes that Burwell and others who were interested in the fight for a new trial for the gunmen would have been witnesses at Becker's second trial.

Boy Scouts in Highland.

A patrol of Boy Scouts was organized at the home of Herman Jordan in Highland on Friday evening. They will be known as "Crows." Two more branches will also be organized. The following are the officers: Scoutmaster, the Rev. George H. Scofield; assistant scoutmaster, Herman Jordan; members who are enrolled are Harold Hasbrouck, Louis Palmer, George Thompson, Hobart Kurtz, Louis Werner, Charles Collins, Arthur Jordan, Herbert Collins, Herman Jordan, Gordon Wilcox, Peter Schantz, Cluett Schantz.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE

Also a Sunday School Parade, Teachers' Training Class and Other Schemes to Stimulate Interest in Sunday School Work.

The executive committee of the newly organized Kingston Sunday School Association held an important meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening and outlined plans for increasing the efficiency of Sunday school work in the city. It was decided to organize a Sunday school baseball league this summer and each Sunday school superintendent in the city is to be asked to appoint a committee of five boys about 15 years of age from his Sunday school who will meet together and elect a chairman who in turn will meet with the chairman appointed by the boys from the other city Sunday schools and Physical Director A. H. Christian at the Y. M. C. A. to organize an athletic executive committee to have charge of arranging for the league games and who will make up a regular schedule of games to be played this summer. It is expected that every Sunday school in the city will be represented by a team in the league.

Sunday School Parade.

Another important matter discussed was the holding of a big Sunday school rally in which all the city Sunday schools will be asked to take part. The rally will be held the second week in September. The date suggested at the meeting was Friday afternoon, September 11.

The plans as discussed was to have the members of the uptown schools meet at their respective schools and then meet at a given point and march to the Y. M. C. A. where they will be met by the members of the downtown schools. Both uptown and downtown scholars will then counter march and assemble in front of the Y. M. C. A. on Pine Grove avenue where appropriate exercises will be held. At the close of the exercises the parade will disband the scholars returning to their respective schools where refreshments will be served them.

Teachers' Training Class.

It was decided to hold a teachers' training class starting October 1 and continuing to May 15 in the Y. M. C. A. The idea being to meet on Monday evenings each week, the sessions to last for an hour and a half. The first part of the session to be devoted to special lectures on Sunday school methods and kindred topics. The closing part of the session will divide itself into groups according to grades when regular courses of study will be taken up under competent teachers.

Plans Completed.

Myron S. Teller of Wall street has completed the plans for the handsome new residence of A. A. Styles to be erected on Main street.

HUERTA HAS ACCEPTED PLAN OF MEDIATION

Argentine, Brazil, Chili, France, England and Spain to Select a Seventh Country as Umpire---Germany Likely to be the Seventh Power Selected.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, April 28.—Gen. Venustiano Huerta has accepted the proposal of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to mediate the dispute between the Mexican and U. S. governments. It was announced today by Foreign Minister Portillo y Rojas, but France, England and Spain are to act with the three South American powers, the six selecting a seventh nation as umpire.

The acceptance of Gen. Huerta was announced after Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, and other European envoys had conferred with the dictator. It is believed that Huerta thinks he may yet be able to avoid compliance with President Wilson's demand for his elimination from Mexican affairs, through the influence of diplomacy.

For forty-eight hours pressure has been brought upon Huerta to accede to the proposition of mediation, every argument possible being urged.

It was sent in reply to a message asking whether Mexico would accept mediation by Latin American nations.
The reply of Senor Portillo confirms the announcement made in Washington by Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, that Huerta had accepted "mediation in principle."
It is in marked contrast with the message received by the International News Service from Huerta on Monday. In this Huerta declared: "Mexico will defend its rights trampled upon by the government of the United States."

ST. LOUIS KID ADMITS PERJURY

Negotiations Were Opened With Him in a Poughkeepsie Pool Room And He Was Paid to Testify for the Gunmen.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 28.—That a blow has been struck at the defense of ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker in his second trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, through a confession made early this morning by William E. Burwell was the statement made at the office of District Attorney Whitman today.

Burwell, who was arrested in Derby, Ct., was brought to this city, taken before District Attorney Whitman and subjected to a rigorous examination.

The prisoner, who is also known as the "St. Louis Kid," confessed that testimony he had given in an effort to secure a new trial for the four gunmen was false. Burwell is alleged to have given the name of a person who concocted his story and he admitted receiving money for committing perjury.

According to Burwell's confession he was first approached in a pool room in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., by a man he knew to be a crook. This man said there was a lot of "easy money" to be made for anyone who would go to a little risk for the gunmen. Burwell said he was promised $1,000 but only received part of that sum. He was brought to this city and introduced to a member of the police force. Then he was introduced to a lawyer and it was in a lawyer's office that he was instructed in what he was to say before Justice Goff.

Immediately after the confession had been given the district attorney called up Poughkeepsie on the long distance telephone and gave them a description of the man who had approached Burwell in the pool room. Detectives are hunting for other men connected with the perjury conspiracy.

Mr. Whitman believes that Burwell and others who were interested in the fight for a new trial for the gunmen would have been witnesses at Becker's second trial.

Boy Scouts in Highland.

A patrol of Boy Scouts was organized at the home of Herman Jordan in Highland on Friday evening. They will be known as "Crows." Two more branches will also be organized. The following are the officers: Scoutmaster, the Rev. George H. Scofield; assistant scoutmaster, Herman Jordan; members who are enrolled are Harold Hasbrouck, Louis Palmer, George Thompson, Hobart Kurtz, Louis Werner, Charles Collins, Arthur Jordan, Gordon Wilcox, Peter Schantz, Cluett Schantz.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE

Also a Sunday School Parade, Teachers' Training Class and Other Schemes to Stimulate Interest in Sunday School Work.

The executive committee of the newly organized Kingston Sunday School Association held an important meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening and outlined plans for increasing the efficiency of Sunday school work in the city. It was decided to organize a Sunday school baseball league this summer and each Sunday school superintendent in the city is to be asked to appoint a committee of five boys about 15 years of age from his Sunday school who will meet together and elect a chairman who in turn will meet with the chairman appointed by the boys from the other city Sunday schools and Physical Director A. H. Christian at the Y. M. C. A. to organize an athletic executive committee to have charge of arranging for the league games and who will make up a regular schedule of games to be played this summer. It is expected that every Sunday school in the city will be represented by a team in the league.

Sunday School Parade.

Another important matter discussed was the holding of a big Sunday school rally in which all the city Sunday schools will be asked to take part. The rally will be held the second week in September. The date suggested at the meeting was Friday afternoon, September 11.

The plan as discussed was to have the members of the uptown schools meet at their respective schools and then meet at a given point and march to the Y. M. C. A. where they will be met by the members of the downtown schools. Both uptown and downtown scholars will then counter march and assemble in front of the Y. M. C. A. on Pine Grove avenue where appropriate exercises will be held. At the close of the exercises the parade will disband the scholars returning to their respective schools where refreshments will be served them.

Teachers' Training Class.

It was decided to hold a teachers' training class starting October 1 and continuing to May 15 in the Y. M. C. A. The idea being to meet on Monday evenings each week, the sessions to last for an hour and a half. The first part of the session to be devoted to special lectures on Sunday school methods and kindred topics. The closing part of the session will divide itself into groups according to grades when regular courses of study will be taken up under competent teachers.

Plans Completed.

Myron S. Teller of Wall street has completed the plans for the handsome new residence of A. A. Styles to be erected on Main street.

HUERTA HAS ACCEPTED PLAN OF MEDIATION

Argentine, Brazil, Chili, France, England and Spain to Select a Seventh Country as Umpire—Germany Likely to be the Seventh Power Selected.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mexico City, April 28.—Gen. Venustiano Huerta has accepted the proposal of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to mediate the dispute between the Mexican and U. S. governments. It was announced today by Foreign Minister Portillo y Rojas, but France, England and Spain are to act with the three South American powers, the six selecting a seventh nation as umpire.

The acceptance of Gen. Huerta was announced after Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, and other European envoys had conferred with the dictator. It is believed that Huerta thinks he may yet be able to avoid compliance with President Wilson's demand for his elimination from Mexican affairs, through the influence of diplomacy.

For forty-eight hours pressure has been brought upon Huerta to accede to the proposition of mediation, every argument possible being urged.

The futility of opposing the vastly superior armed forces of the U. S. was impressed upon Huerta and his close followers expressed the belief that diplomacy would undoubtedly prove the wiser course.

It is probable that Germany will be the seventh power selected.

Baron Paul Von Hintze, the German minister, and Sir Lionel Carden were the foremost figures among the diplomats urging Huerta to accept mediation.

The dictator was at first full of fight, but finally consented, pledging his words to the diplomats that he would accept their advice and good offices.

REBELLION EXISTS IN COLORADO

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Denver, Colo., April 28.—The climax in the greatest industrial war that Colorado has ever seen was reported today. Gov. Ammons issued a proclamation declaring that a state of rebellion exists.

He called upon all citizens to rally for the suppression of lawlessness in the coal strike district.

The state troops have proved unable to cope with the situation. It has become much worse as a result of the failure of President Wilson's personal representative, Congressman Foster, to secure any concessions from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whom the strikers claim to be responsible for conditions.

Fighting is going on in many places. The warfare has extended from the southern coal fields to those in the north. Complete anarchy is imminent. More than a dozen men are reported killed near Valsenburg. Fighting is severe near Boulder.

FUNSTON'S BRIGADE IS DISEMBARKING

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Vera Cruz, April 28.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, commander of the Fifth infantry brigade of the United States army, landed from the transport Kilpatrick today and took immediate command of all future operations by armed United States forces in this district.

The soldiers brought here from Galveston on the transports Kilpatrick, Meade, McClellan and Sumner are being landed and are taking up positions assigned to them by Gen. Funston.

The soldiers were landed at the Ward line docks.

The bluejackets on shore will be withdrawn but the marines will remain on shore to support the army.

All night long Gen. Funston and Rear Admiral Badger were in wireless communication arranging for final details of the landing of the soldiers and the withdrawal of the marines in cleaning up and policing the city.

Although the transports arrived during the night they were not warped into the docks until about 10 o'clock. The disembarkment commenced at once.

NEW PLAN FOR CHARTER REVISION

Committee Appointed to Confer With Mayor Canfield and Unanimously Agree on a Commission to do the Work.

At the special meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce held at the city hall on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, President Sam Bernstein appointed J. E. Klock, E. F. MacFadden and R. E. Leighton a committee of three to meet with President Edgar N. Palen, ex-Mayor Morris Block and ex-Mayor Walter P. Crane, the committee appointed by the Municipal League, and Mayor Canfield, to select a commission for the purpose of charter revision.

The board adopted the following resolution offered by Mr. Klock: "Resolved, that the president appoint a committee of three of this body to confer with the committee of three appointed by the Municipal League regarding the framing of a new charter for the city of Kingston; and it is further resolved, that it is the sense of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce that its committee together with the committee of the Municipal League and with the mayor unanimously select a commission for the purpose of charter revision."

Both the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the Municipal League held special meetings and each appointed a committee of three at the suggestion of Mayor Canfield who expected to appoint a committee of three, making a general committee of nine members to revise the charter.

That was the original plan but after careful thought both the mayor and the members of the two organizations thought it would prove more satisfactory to have each of the two bodies appoint a committee of three each to meet with the mayor and then select a charter commission to revise the present city charter.

The two committees that have been appointed will shortly meet with Mayor Canfield. Just how many men will be selected to form this charter commission is entirely within the discretion of the two committees and the mayor.

Under the plan as now adopted it is expected that the representatives of the two organizations and the mayor will be better able to select a competent and well rounded commission who will be able to draw up a charter that will meet with the general approval of the city, or recommend one of the uniform forms.

Living Pictures at the Fair.

One of the many attractions at the Trinity M. E. fair to be given on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock, will be a series of living pictures and songs from Mother Goose. The following is the program:

Chorus.—Mother Goose Land. Pictures. Little Miss Muffet... Elizabeth Terry Little Boy Blue... John Thompson Jack and Jill

—Kathryn Boice, Watson Bailey Songs. Black Birds... 12 Boys Old Woman Sweeping Cobwebs From the Sky... Laura Bailey Old Woman, Who Lived in a Shoe.

—Jane Trethewey Bo-Peep... 12 Girls UNION CENTER.

Union Center, April 28.—The Christian Endeavor Society are making preparations for an entertainment to be held on Wednesday evening, May 6. The Gypsies will hold their festival at that time and will make a very pretty picture with their gay attire and pretty songs and dances. Refreshments will be served at the close of the entertainment, which promises to be one of unusual enjoyment. A cordial invitation is extended everyone.

A family from New York city have moved on the "Bassett Farm." Mr. Hearn has a force of men engaged in putting a system of running water in the house and barn. The pupils at school are rehearsing for a play to be given on Arbor Day, Friday, May 5, "Cinderella in Flowerland." Miss Gildersleeve is taking a great deal of interest in drilling the children, who are very enthusiastic over it.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, April 27.—A sock social will be held in the lecture room of Ashokan M. E. Church, on Tuesday evening, April 28. Refreshments will be served, and ice cream and candy, will be on sale. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

The preaching service in the Ashokan M. E. Church, on Sunday evening, May 3, will be in charge of Mrs. E. T. Byles, in place of our minister, who is undergoing an operation in New York city.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

9674.—A Seasonable and Attractive Dress for Mother's Girl.

This design was developed in brown line, with trimming of brown and white checked gingham. It would also look well in white with self or contrasting trimming, and is suitable for any of this season's popular dress materials. The deep hip belt may be omitted. The closing is at the left side under the tuck. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 4 yards of 36 inch material for an 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps to The Freeman Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1914 Spring and Summer Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns; also a concise and comprehensive article on dress-making, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Mother Goose Fair Opens.

The finishing touches have been put on the arrangements and decorations of the "Mother Goose Fair" to be held at Trinity Methodist Church today and Wednesday. Everything presents a most attractive and inviting appearance. A very large number of tickets were sold for the chicken dinner served today at noon, and the advance sale of tickets for the "Mother Goose Entertainment" is also heavy, thus guaranteeing a large measure of success. Mrs. J. S. Robinson, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, is head chairwoman of the fair, and much of the unusual activity has been due to her indefatigable work and planning. The chairwoman and their cabinets are as follows: Fancy booth, Mrs. H. H. Flemming and Mrs. Jay Terry; domestic booth, Mrs. A. W. Tongue and Mrs. A. C. Gates; comfortable booth, Mrs. Albert Terry, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and Mrs. Edw. Burger; candy booth, Miss Mabel Baldwin and Miss Eva Canfield; lemonade booth, Miss Agnes Lounsbury, Miss Sadie Boyd, Miss Maude McKeown and Miss Nettie Powell; fish pond, Miss Rachel Thompson; entertainment, Mrs. David Terry, Miss Belle Thompson, Miss Mabel Hale and Miss Ethel Mautesstock; refreshments, Mrs. W. D. Hale, Mrs. Howard Shultis and Mrs. Henry Eldridge.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the members of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Kingston, N. Y., will be held at the Association Building on Monday, May 11th, 1914, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of electing five directors and transacting such other business as may come before the meeting.

That was the original plan but after careful thought both the mayor and the members of the two organizations thought it would prove more satisfactory to have each of the two bodies appoint a committee of three each to meet with the mayor and then select a charter commission to revise the present city charter.

The two committees that have been appointed will shortly meet with Mayor Canfield. Just how many men will be selected to form this charter commission is entirely within the discretion of the two committees and the mayor.

Under the plan as now adopted it is expected that the representatives of the two organizations and the mayor will be better able to select a competent and well rounded commission who will be able to draw up a charter that will meet with the general approval of the city, or recommend one of the uniform forms.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, April 28.--The Christian Endeavor Society are making preparations for an entertainment to be held on Wednesday evening, May 6. The Gypsies will hold their festival at that time and will make a very pretty picture with their gay attire and pretty songs and dances. Refreshments will be served at the close of the entertainment, which promises to be one of unusual enjoyment. A cordial invitation is extended everyone.

A family from New York city have moved on the "Bassett Farm." Mr. Hearn has a force of men engaged in putting a system of running water in the house and barn. The pupils at school are rehearsing for a play to be given on Arbor Day, Friday, May 5, "Cinderella in Flowerland." Miss Gildersleeve is taking a great deal of interest in drilling the children, who are very enthusiastic over it.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, April 27.--A sock social will be held in the lecture room of Ashokan M. E. Church, on Tuesday evening, April 28. Refreshments will be served, and ice cream and candy, will be on sale. A cordial welcome is extended to all. The preaching service in the Ashokan M. E. Church, on Sunday evening, May 3, will be in charge of Mrs. E. T. Byles, in place of our minister, who is undergoing an operation in New York city.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

9674.--A Seasonable and Attractive Dress for Mother's Girl.

This design was developed in brown line, with trimming of brown and white checked gingham. It would also look well in white with self or contrasting trimming, and is suitable for any of this season's popular dress materials. The deep hip belt may be omitted. The closing is at the left side under the back. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 4 yards of 36 inch material for an 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps to The Freeman Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1914 Spring and Summer Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns; also a concise and comprehensive article on dress-making, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Mother Goose Fair Opens.

The finishing touches have been put on the arrangements and decorations of the "Mother Goose Fair" to be held at Trinity Methodist Church today and Wednesday. Everything presents a most attractive and inviting appearance. A very large number of tickets were sold for the chicken dinner served today at noon, and the advance sale of tickets for the "Mother Goose Entertainment" is also heavy, thus guaranteeing a large measure of success. Mrs. J. S. Robinson, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, is head chairwoman of the fair, and much of the unusual activity has been due to her indefatigable work and planning. The chairwoman and their cabinets are as follows: Fancy booth, Mrs. H. H. Flemming and Mrs. Jay Terry; domestic booth, Mrs. A. W. Tongue and Mrs. A. C. Gates; comfortable booth, Mrs. Albert Terry, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and Mrs. Edw. Burger; candy booth, Miss Mabel Baisden and Miss Eva Canfield; lemonade booth, Miss Agnes Lounsbury, Miss Sadie Boyd, Miss Maude McKeown and Miss Nettie Powell; fish pond, Miss Rachel Thompson; entertainment, Mrs. David Terry, Miss Belle Thompson, Miss Mabel Hale and Miss Ethel Mauterstock; refreshments, Mrs. W. D. Hale, Mrs. Howard Shultis and Mrs. Henry Eldridge.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the members of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Kingston, N. Y., will be held at the Association Building on Monday, May 11th, 1914, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of electing five directors and transacting such other business as may come before the meeting.

Dated, April 28, 1914.

TO PURIFY COLLEGE GAMES

Parke H. Davis Has Scheme for Eradicating Professionals From Baseball—Two Good Rules.

Summer baseball, a term applied to the playing by college men of the national game for money or other profit during their vacation, is handled in exhaustive fashion by Parke H. Davis. In order to eradicate the evils resultant from this mode in the eyes of the makers of the rules, Mr. Davis advocates two schemes, the adoption of which he feels will make for the purification of amateurism, and bring about that state of affairs so much desired by the legislators for the game among college men.

The author has probably touched the crux of the situation in his proposals as to requirements, the first being a personal certificate for a competitive team member to sign and which is as follows:

I certify upon my honor that I have never directly or indirectly participated in any branch of sport for pay; that I have never received any valuable thing in lieu of money except medals and prizes regularly offered, and that I have never participated in any branch of sport under an assumed name.

He further states that "the penalty for falsely signing such a certificate should be expulsion." Some will say that such a penalty is too severe. The answer to this is that the honor of representing a college upon a competitive team is large and that the obligation imposed should not be less.

The rule for athletes after matriculation which he prescribes is:

No student shall be eligible for membership upon any competitive team who after matriculation participates in any sport at which an admission fee is charged, except as a member of one of the college competitive teams, or who receives, directly or indirectly, any compensation, remuneration, reimbursement, or payment of his expenses for participating in any sport at which an admission fee is not charged.

Mr. Davis states that this is a strong rule, but it is made in behalf of a great object, the orderly conduct of competitive college sport.

KNOWN AS A ROLLING STONE

Shortstop Bridwell of St. Louis Federal Plays Short Engagements With Several Clubs.

Albert Bridwell, the St. Louis Federal league shortstop, was born on a farm near Portsmouth, O., on January 3, 1884. Bridwell is known as the rolling stone of baseball. After playing with amateur teams in and around Portsmouth "Brid" was given a trial in 1903 by the Columbus team of the American association. He failed to stick with the Senators and was farmed to Atlanta to finish the season. The next year he was recalled by the Columbus Club. He made good on his second trial and was sold to the Cincinnati Reds at the close of the season. He continued with the Reds in 1905. Boston found use for him in 1906 and the following season he was included in the big trade with the Giants. He remained with New York until midseason, 1911, when an injured foot caused him to slow up in his work and the Giants shipped him back to the Hub.

After remaining with Boston a short time Bridwell was released to the Chicago Cubs. From Chicago Bridwell jumped to the St. Louis Federal.

Family of Ball Players.

Harry Coveleskie, one of Detroit's new southpaw pitchers, is one of four brothers, all of whom have had baseball careers and three of whom are now in the game. One brother is a pitcher in the Spokane club of the Northwestern league. Another is in the Tri-State, and a third is now in business with Harry at their home in Shamokin, Pa.

Keep Up Batting Averages.

Notification has gone out from the National commission to all club owners calling attention to the rule in the fraternity agreement that provides that fences or stands in line with the plate shall be painted green, so that the players' precious batting averages shall not be damaged.

No Middle Course.

Kindness is indispensable to your relations with men; if you are not kind to a man, then you are hostile to him, and you invite hostility in him.—Leo Tolstol.

ST. PETER IS IN JAIL.

Tongore Man Caught on His Way Home and Arrested.

Peter St. Peter of Tongore was arrested on a bench warrant on Monday afternoon and locked up in the county jail to await trial. Peter was indicted by the grand jury in March on two counts both being for the same offence, violation of the liquor law. In some manner Peter became aware of the fact that the grand jury was considering his case and that he would probably be indicted and he skipped out for parts unknown the day before the grand jury reported. When last heard of Peter was enjoying life in Paterson, N. J. Peter was evidently under the impression that as no mention had been publicly made of his indictment that he had received the wrong information and he decided to pay Tongore a visit. Some one tipped off the sheriff's office that Peter was on his way home and Under Sheriff Archie McLaughlin met the train at the West Shore station and locating Peter aboard he placed him under arrest.

Hotel Barmann Changes.

Abram V. Brink, who for the past four years has been head dispenser at the Mitchell House, has accepted a position as head dispenser and manager for Melvin Beadle, who took over the Hotel Barmann, corner of Cedar street and Broadway, on Monday. Mr. Brink assumed his new duties this morning. The new proprietor of the Hotel Barmann expects to make considerable changes to the property and will conduct a restaurant in connection with the hotel. Nicholas Souser, for some years head cook on the West Shore R. R., has accepted a position with Mr. Beadle and will have charge of the restaurant. It will probably be a week or ten days before the hotel will be in readiness as Mr. Beadle intends to entirely renovate the property. It is also expected that a fine grill room will be a feature of the hotel.

Epworth League Election.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League of the St. James M. E. Church for the election officers was held in the church parlors on Monday evening and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Samuel D. Scudder, Jr.; first vice president, Miss Emma Down; second vice president, Miss Lucy Berryann; third vice president, Miss Marion Everett; fourth vice president, Miss Ethel Carpenter; secretary, Miss Jennie Williams; treasurer, Rufus Whitney; pianist, Miss Pansy Reynolds; assistant pianist, Miss Edna Weber. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and ice cream and cake served.

Woman's Presbyterian Society.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Presbyterian Society of North River will be held at Highland on Wednesday. Exercises at 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The session will be attended by representatives from the society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church.

the above entitled action and entered in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on the 7th day of April, 1914, and bearing date the 4th day of April, 1914. I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the court house in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, New York, on the 8th day of June, 1914, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon on that day, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land, situated in the Town of Esopus, County of Ulster and State of New York, and being part and parcel of lots owned and occupied by Samuel Terpenning at the time of his decease and being a part of lot No. Thirteen (13) in the second class of the division of Kingston Corporation and being the same as was conveyed to Samuel Terpenning by Isaac Delamater in a division of said lot made by him in 1836, reference may be had to said deed for a full description by the boundaries of said lot containing two acres of land, bounded as follows: North by Clark S. Holt, east by Louis Mosier, south by Selah Terpenning and west Bowdoin Terpenning hereby designing to convey the third lot described in a certain deed dated the twenty-fourth day of January, 1861, made by Susanna Terpenning, Oliver Terpenning and others to Thomas Scott and Oliver Terpenning, reference to said deed may more fully appear. Being the same premises conveyed to said John H. Burger by Thomas Scott and another by deed dated May 31, 1862 and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office in Deed Book 153 page 455 &c.

Also all that small piece and parcel of land situated in the Town of Esopus aforesaid, and being the same as conveyed to the said Lewis Mosier by Isaac Delamater by deed bearing date April 25th, 1836 and known as lot number seven in a division made by Isaac LeFever in April, 1836, of lot number 13 of the Corporation of Kingston, in the second class and said lot No. 7 hereby conveyed is bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake standing on the north line of the original corporation lot and in the northwest corner of lot No. 9 of the last division and runs from thence along said north line south eighty-four degrees west five chains sixty-four links to a stake standing in the northeast corner of lot number 5 then along the east line of said lot number 5 south six degrees east seven chains and twelve links to a stake marked 5, 6, 7, 8, standing in the northwest corner of lot number 8 then along the north line of lot number 8 north eighty-four degrees east five chains sixty-four links to a stake standing in the southwest corner of lot number 9 then along the west line of lot number 9 north six degrees west seven chains and twelve links to the place of beginning. Containing four acres of land, more or less. Being the same premises conveyed by Lewis Mosier and wife to John H. Burger, by deed dated November 5, 1869, and recorder in Deed Book No. 179, page 2, June 24th, 1872.

Also all those two certain pieces and parcels of wood land situated in the Town of Esopus aforesaid, and being parts and parcels of a certain thirty acre lot known and distinguished on a map of the division of the corporation of Kingston, by lot number 13 in the second class and divided and surveyed by Isaac LeFever into small lots in April, 1836, for Isaac Delamater and by him conveyed to George Terpenning by deed bearing date April 25th, 1836. First lot is distinguished in the last division as lot number 1 and is bounded as follows: Beginning at the northwest corner of said lot number 13 and runs from thence north eighty-four degrees east two chains eighty-two links to a stake and stones to lot No. 3 of the last division, then along lot number 3 south six degrees east seven chains and twelve links to a stake in the corner of lots number 2 and 4, then along lot number 2 south eighty-four degrees west two chains eighty-two links to a stake on the west line of the original lot, then along said west line north six degrees west seven chains and twelve links to the place of beginning. Containing two acres.

Second lot is composed of lots No. 4 and 6 of said last division and is bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake and stones on the south line of the original lot being the south east corner of lot No. 2 in the last division and runs from thence along the south line of the original lot north eighty-four degrees east five chains sixty-four links to a stake in the southwest corner of lot number 8. Then along lot number 8 north six degrees west 7 chains twelve links to a stake marked 5, 6, 7, 8, in the south east corner of lot number 5, then along lots No. 5 and 3 south eighty-four degrees west five chains sixty-four links to a stake in the north east corner of lot number 2 marked 1, 2, 3, 4, then south six degrees east along lot No. 2 seven chains and twelve links to the place of beginning. Containing four acres of land. Being the same premises conveyed by Selah Terpenning and wife to said John H. Burger, by deed dated November 5, 1869, and recorded in Deed Book number 179, page 3, June 24, 1872.

Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situated in the Town of Esopus and is described as follows: Beginning at a stake and stones at the southwest corner of said lot, and runs thence north six degrees west seven chains and twelve links, thence south six degrees east seven chains and twelve links, thence north eighty-four degrees two chains and eighty-two links to the place of beginning. Containing two acres.

TO PURIFY COLLEGE GAMES

Parke H. Davis Has Scheme for Eradicating Professionals From Baseball—Two Good Rules.

Summer baseball, a term applied to the playing by college men of the national game for money or other profit during their vacation, is handled in exhaustive fashion by Parke H. Davis. In order to eradicate the evils resultant from this mode in the eyes of the makers of the rules, Mr. Davis advocates two schemes, the adoption of which he feels will make for the purification of amateurism, and bring about that state of affairs so much desired by the legislators for the game among college men.

The author has probably touched the crux of the situation in his proposals as to requirements, the first being a personal certificate for a competitive team member to sign and which is as follows:

I certify upon my honor that I have never directly or indirectly participated in any branch of sport for pay; that I have never received any valuable thing in lieu of money except medals and prizes regularly offered, and that I have never participated in any branch of sport under an assumed name.

He further states that "the penalty for falsely signing such a certificate should be expulsion." Some will say that such a penalty is too severe. The answer to this is that the honor of representing a college upon a competitive team is large and that the obligation imposed should not be less.

The rule for athletes after matriculation which he prescribes is:

No student shall be eligible for membership upon any competitive team who after matriculation participates in any sport at which an admission fee is charged, except as a member of one of the college competitive teams, or who receives, directly or indirectly, any compensation, remuneration, reimbursement, or payment of his expenses for participating in any sport at which an admission fee is not charged.

Mr. Davis states that this is a strong rule, but it is made in behalf of a great object, the orderly conduct of competitive college sport.

KNOWN AS A ROLLING STONE

Shortstop Bridwell of St. Louis Federal Plays Short Engagements With Several Clubs.

Albert Bridwell, the St. Louis Federal league shortstop, was born on a farm near Portsmouth, O., on January 3, 1884. Bridwell is known as the rolling stone of baseball. After playing with amateur teams in and around Portsmouth "Brid" was given a trial in 1903 by the Columbus team of the American association. He failed to stick with the Senators and was farmed to Atlanta to finish the season. The next year he was recalled by the Columbus Club. He made good on his second trial and was sold to the Cincinnati Reds at the close of the season. He continued with the Reds in 1905. Boston found use for him in 1906 and the following season he was included in the big trade with the Giants. He remained with New York until midseason, 1911, when an in-Jured foot caused him to slow up in his work and the Giants shipped him back to the Hub.

After remaining with Boston a short time Bridwell was released to the Chicago Cubs. From Chicago Bridwell jumped to the St. Louis Federal.

Family of Ball Players.

Harry Coveleskie, one of Detroit's new southpaw pitchers, is one of four brothers, all of whom have had baseball careers and three of whom are now in the game. One brother is a pitcher in the Spokane club of the Northwestern league. Another is in the Tri-State, and a third is now in business with Harry at their home in Shamokin, Pa.

ST. PETER IS IN JAIL.

Tongore Man Caught on His Way Home and Arrested.

Peter St. Peter of Tongore was arrested on a bench warrant on Monday afternoon and locked up in the county jail to await trial. Peter was indicted by the grand jury in March on two counts both being for the same offence, violation of the liquor tax law. In some manner Peter became aware of the fact that the grand jury was considering his case and that he would probably be indicted and he skipped out for parts unknown the day before the grand jury reported. When last heard of Peter was enjoying life in Paterson, N. J. Peter was evidently under the impression that as no mention had been publicly made of his indictment that he had received the wrong information and he decided to pay Tongore a visit. Some one tipped off the sheriff's office that Peter was on his way home and Under Sheriff Archie McLaughlin met the train at the West Shore station and locating Peter aboard he placed him under arrest.

Hotel Barmann Changes.

Abram V. Brink, who for the past four years has been head dispenser at the Mitchell House, has accepted a position as head dispenser and manager for Melvin Beadle, who took over the Hotel Barmann, corner of Cedar street and Broadway, on Monday. Mr. Brink assumed his new duties this morning. The new proprietor of the Hotel Barmann expects to make considerable changes to the property and will conduct a restaurant in connection with the hotel. Nicholas Souer, for some years head cook on the West Shore R. R., has accepted a position with Mr. Beadle and will have charge of the restaurant. It will probably be a week or ten days before the hotel will be in readiness as Mr. Beadle intends to entirely renovate the property. It is also expected that a fine grill room will be a feature of the hotel.

Epworth League Election.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League of the St. James M. E. Church for the election officers was held in the church parlors on Monday evening and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Samuel D. KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 28, 1914.

The prospect of securing a new charter for the City of Kingston is improving. Both the Chamber of Commerce and the Municipal League have appointed delegates to confer with the Mayor or with a committee appointed by him. The ideas of these two bodies differ as to the mode of selection of the men who will do the actual work of revision, but an agreement will easily be reached, since the intentions of all concerned are unselfish. It is important that the charter to be submitted to popular vote be of such a character that it will attract the support of the vast majority of citizens, so that it will not only be adopted but will remain unchanged until such time as local conditions are radically altered.

According to estimates just completed by the Census Bureau, the population of the United States on July 1 of this year will be 98,781,324, which is an increase of nearly 7,000,000 since 1910. If the City of Kingston has grown at the rate averaged by the entire country, its population on July 1 should be about 27,740, assuming that the last census report of 25,908 inhabitants was correct. There are many ways of proving, however, that the count was too small, and it is highly probable that we now have between 28,000 and 29,000 citizens. The Chamber of Commerce has arranged with the publishers of the city directory for a count next summer and we confidently anticipate that the figures will be gratifying to all who take pride in the city's growth.

A few days ago The Freeman, along with a good many other papers, printed a despatch to the effect that Villa had thrown Carranza into jail. It turned out to be untrue. There will be many similar rumors as the war proceeds. It is beyond human power to verify despatches from an excited country before a paper has to go to press. In fact, an attempt to verify Mexican news would result in printing no news at all. Rumors are not always started maliciously. They grow from little things. Many of us have played a parlor game in which one person whispers to another a story which he in turn passes on in the same way. After it passes through a dozen mediums it bears little resemblance to its original form. The best way is to take all war news with a grain of salt. Anyway, it is interesting whether true or not.

There is to be no direct State tax this year, Governor Glynn having vetoed the bill levying one. It will be remembered that the Republican party abolished the State tax many years ago, but that it was restored when Dix came into office along with a Democratic Legislature. It should be remembered that under Republican administration the wants of the various State institutions were well taken care of, while under Democratic administration they have been put upon half rations in order to avoid the direct tax. The veto of the bill appropriating $100,000 for much needed improvements at the New Paltz Normal School is a near-by example of what has been done in this mad effort to manufacture political capital. But for the insistence of the Democratic leaders that jobs be furnished for their party hacks, our public institutions might have been treated fairly, and without levying a State tax either.

Whatever may come of Huerta's acceptance of "mediation in principle," it is interesting to know that his action was induced by pressure brought to bear upon him by the governments of France, Germany and Great Britain, at the request of Secretary Bryan. It is only a little while ago that our national administration notified Europe to keep its fingers out of the Mexican pie, on the theory that intervention from that quarter would in some way damage the sacred Monroe Doctrine. This paper is among those which suggested at the beginning of the Mexican trouble that the United States ask for cooperation of all the great powers in pacifying the country. Such a suggestion would have been able to force the warring chiefs into submission without striking a blow or shedding a drop of blood. Mexican officials naturally revolt at accepting the dictation of another nation, but it would cover so far as to defy to grow a hair on the Mexican's back. In this case, however, the result is a deplorable loss of life and treasure, but his salary goes on just the same.

THE GAY AND THE QUIET.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

As a purely selfish proposition, to whom does life grow more roseate of hue as the years speed away—to those who are the frankest of pleasure-seekers, always planning something fresh, ever "on the go," and right at home in the heart of a crowd, or to the more quiet folk who live in the background and are out of harmony anywhere else?

It is something of a question, in its way, because the lines divide between those who, in the language of the street, are "good mixers," and the others who run away from places where the many are gathered and find their pleasures with the few to their liking.

There is a joyous effervescence about the one variety quite missing in the other, and it is true that the pleasure-seekers do seem mightily to enjoy life wherever they go. If they work at all they hurry it through at the gay call of pleasure, and off they skip to a jolly little affair, where they will find plenty of froth, to be sure, but an afternoon or evening filled to the brim with laughing nothings, harmless, if not very deep.

And when they have chatted and laughed and jested the hours away to the gayest kind of a tune, away they go and plan all over again. How deep down the joyousness sinks, nobody knows but themselves, but it seems to be real, and to bubble up at the smallest provocation. And as they flit about from one thing to another, like birds on the wing, they seem to be as care-free, as happy and contented as the day is long.

And the more serious variety wonderingly look on and search their minds and their hearts and their soberer makeup to learn what they have missed or what they have gained, for they hear the laughter that sounds so spontaneous, watch the effervescence pass along and hear the glad little chatter; and, try their very best, the dear, serious souls cannot bubble and sparkle with the rest. And the most discouraging—or encouraging, as may be—part of it, they cannot see where the joy comes in. Perhaps they may wish they might enter into the spirit of the gay laughter, the light little talk upon nothing at all, and the jests that are handed around, but they simply were not born or bent to shine in the throngs or to find their pleasures there. And as the ringing echoes of laughter grow faint in the distance, and as the pleasure-seekers hurry away on their never-ending quest, the quieter ones thoughtfully try to measure up what they have gained and what they have missed. For life and excitement and change are found where the pleasure-seekers abound, and the way of the others runs through more prosaic channels.

And which would they follow if they might follow whither they would?

Well, if they might, they would follow a Dr. Johnson out on the crowded London streets, they would note his splendid responsiveness to the sights and scenes rushing in upon him with a mighty tide of interest, and they would know it was idle to plan any fantastic amusement to stir a man like that. They would hear him vigorously declare that when a man grows tired of the diversions to be found on the streets, just for the looking, he is weary of living, and they would pray that they, too, might find their pleasures in similar pursuits.

Or they would trail close in the interested wake of a Scott along the mountainside of the lakes, and as they caught some of the reflected lights on the way, they would remember that

"The pleasure in my heart I bore long after it was seen no more."

And they would be sure that the deepest delights of all are those not artificially planned.

They would reflect that while the gay-hearted searchers after pleasure apparently enjoy the hours crowded with fun and many-sided diversion, they are not storing up within themselves a single thing to draw upon for the many tomorrows when amusement and excitement may not be found for the planning. They may laugh and be joyous when close to the heart of the glad, festive crowds, but when the jolly little affairs are not forthcoming, will be self-forces be strong enough to keep them joyous and gay just the same. The quieter ones doubt it, because folk who depend upon events crowding upon events to stir them are not often the kind who have something within that makes them respond to the vital things in the world, something strong in its very simplicity.

And while they would think that they might be missing the pretty, soft froth that gathers at the top of the life cup they would be sure they were drinking in of the things worth while.

And so they would be quite satisfied though they were not fashioned by nature to join the gayer throngs, festive as those throngs always appear.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.

Lecture on Mental Defect and State Duty to Defectives.

On Friday evening, April 24, Arthur E. Hamilton, secretary of the Second International Eugenics Congress and also connected with the Carnegie Institute at Cold Spring Harbor, spoke to a keenly interested audience at the Y. M. C. A. hall on the subject of mental defect and the state's duty toward mental defectives.

Mr. Hamilton said that the subject of mental defect was one which was cloudy in all minds but that in speaking he would use the term feeble-minded in its broad sense including all grades. This problem is one which reaches out in all directions, Mr. Hamilton said, and it is his duty to his hereditary posterity to show the working out of the Mendelian law showing that qualities are inherited as units. One of the interesting slides showed how that the crossing of white and black Andalusian chickens produce a blue in the first generation and in the following generations percentages are approximately 25 per cent black, 50 per cent blue and 25 per cent white. Mr. Hamilton went on to tell how certain hereditary laws which had been discovered in regard to the inheritance of color of the human race and how they were now working out the really important part of this problem, the inheritance of mental and moral qualities. There were charts showing how alcoholism and criminalistic tendencies and mental defect reappear in generation after generation.

Mr. Hamilton then showed pictures of the different types and told how he had seen many of these same types in going about Ulster county that day.

After showing these slides Mr. Hamilton made a plea that the people who recognize the great prevalence of mental defect in their community, and how great a menace to the community, and when not a menace, a drag, make public their recognition of this danger and do all in their power to aid in solving the problem.

At the extraordinary session of the legislature which is to be held this May a bill providing for increased appropriations for the custodial care of mental defectives is to be passed upon and Mr. Hamilton suggested that this was the most needed and most immediate way of helping the solution of this problem.

A motion was then made by Rear Admiral Higginson that a resolution approving the passage of the bill for the increased appropriation be sent to our senator and assemblyman. This motion was passed unanimously.

GRANGE AND FARM WOMEN

Washington Grangers Reply to Secretary Houston's Query Regarding Their Future Needs.

A few months ago Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston sent out inquiries, asking for opinions regarding the future needs and problems of the farm women of the country, and thousands of replies have come back to him, representing a great variety of opinions. The matter was taken up in a big Grange meeting in the state of Washington and a very complete answer made to Mr. Houston's questions and forwarded to him. Some extracts from that communication indicate well the broad view of this great question:

"We respectfully hold that in this broad, fair land of ours, every farm home should be a sanitary abode and in order to free the farmer's wife from the soul warping drudgery in incessant toil and to secure to her the degree of leisure necessary to develop and cultivate latent and dormant talents and abilities, that every home should be equipped with labor-saving devices, such as—water under pressure, cold and hot—a sewerage system or sanitary cesspool—power to run washing machine, wringer, churn, etc.—a light plant—cabineted kitchen, and the many useful and clever devices for saving time and steps.

"We are also of the opinion that the humdrum existence of the average farmer's wife and the lack of labor-saving devices in the average farm home, are not due, except in rare cases, to the parsimoniousness and selfish conduct of the farmer husband, but are caused by economic and social conditions over which the individual farmer has no control.

"We are also agreed that the economic, social, educational and home forces that can elevate the agricultural pursuit to a higher estate will automatically bring about the betterment of conditions for the farmer's wife.

"We are convinced that the forces that give hope, assurance and promise of independence to the farmer and his wife are those enunciated in our order's declaration of principles of action and all those that make for economic justice and freedom, namely:

"Co-operation in buying, selling and manufacturing farm products and a direct relation between the consumer and producer, farmer and manufacturer.

"The scientific development and management of transportation; of the nation's natural resources and all other social and industrial affairs.

"The establishment of a co-operative banking and credit system, making it possible for the farmers of this country to secure the capital necessary for scientific production and efficient distribution on a 'long time,' 'low per cent' plan, thus taking from the fundamental industry the burden and the curse of indebtedness."

PAST OFFICERS DEAD.

Past Master Edmund Braddock of the New Jersey state Grange has just passed away at an advanced age, after a long period of suffering. He was for many years prominent in the order in New Jersey and took an active part in the councils of the National Grange.

F. C. Sells of Illinois, a former overseer of the Illinois state Grange, has recently died at his home in Wabash county. He was an active worker for the Grange in its early days in Illinois and was well known among the older Patrons of that state.

Solomon C. Carr, a former master of the Wisconsin state Grange, has just died at the age of eighty-three years. Mr. Carr became a charter member of Du Lac Grange, No. 72, in 1873, and during all the years that followed he was a devoted member of the order and was very rarely absent from the annual session of the state Grange.

PRACTICAL CO-OPERATION.

Here is the word that comes from one of the big western states, in the way the Grange is saving its members real money, through co-operative buying:

Berrytown Grange, No. 1430 of Berrytown, Kan., has a membership of almost 200 members. They buy their feed, flour and coal in carload lots, and with Turn Mound, Overbrook and Michigan Valley Granges they have co-operated and are planning to buy everything in carload lots. This Grange has saved its members hundreds of dollars during the last two years by buying in car lots.

GRANGE STRONG IN OHIO.

Some idea of the strength of the Grange in Ohio may be gained from the fact that the Granges in that state own 171 halls, valued at $255,000, while it is estimated that the musical instruments alone in these halls are worth $37,000, besides all the other furniture. Traveling libraries are a great feature of Grange work in Ohio, and more than 20,000 books in these libraries are now in constant circulation among the Patrons in all parts of that state.

The prospect of securing a new charter for the City of Kingston is improving. Both the Chamber of Commerce and the Municipal League have appointed delegates to confer with the Mayor or with a committee appointed by him. The ideas of these two bodies differ as to the mode of selection of the men who will do the actual work of revision, but an agreement will easily be reached, since the intentions of all concerned are unselfish. It is important that the charter to be submitted to popular vote be of such a character that it will attract the support of the vast majority of citizens, so that it will not only be adopted but will remain unchanged until such time as local conditions are radically altered.

According to estimates just completed by the Census Bureau, the population of the United States on July 1 of this year will be 98,781,324, which is an increase of nearly 7,000,000 since 1910. If the City of Kingston has grown at the rate averaged by the entire country, its population on July 1 should be about 27,740, assuming that the last census report of 25,908 inhabitants was correct. There are many ways of proving, however, that the count was too small, and it is highly probable that we now have between 28,000 and 29,000 citizens. The Chamber of Commerce has arranged with the publishers of the city directory for a count next summer and we confidently anticipate that the figures will be gratifying to all who take pride in the city's growth.

A few days ago The Freeman, along with a good many other papers, printed a despatch to the effect that Villa had thrown Carranza into jail. It turned out to be untrue. There will be many similar rumors as the war proceeds. It is beyond human power to verify despatches from an excited country before a paper has to go to press. In fact, an attempt to verify Mexican news would result in printing no news at all. Rumors are not always started maliciously. They grow from little things. Many of us have played a parlor game in which one person whispers to another a story which he in turn passes on in the same way. After it passes through a dozen mediums it bears little resemblance to its original form. The best way is to take all war news with a grain of salt. Anyway, it is interesting whether true or not.

There is to be no direct State tax this year, Governor Glynn having vetoed the bill levying one. It will be remembered that the Republican party abolished the State tax many years ago, but that it was restored when Dix came into office along with a Democratic Legislature. It should be remembered that under Republican administration the wants of the various State institutions were well taken care of, while under Democratic administration they have been put upon half rations in order to avoid the direct tax. The veto of the bill appropriating $100,000 for much needed improvements at the New Paltz Normal School is a near-by example of what has been done in this mad effort to manufacture political capital. But for the insistence of the Democratic leaders that jobs be furnished for their party hacks, our public institutions might have been treated fairly, and without levying a State tax either.

Whatever may come of Huerta's acceptance of "mediation in principle," it is interesting to know that his action was induced by pressure brought to bear upon him by the governments of France, Germany and Great Britain, at the request of Secretary Bryan. It is only a little while ago that our national administration-notified Europe to keep its fingers out of the Mexican pie, on the theory that intervention from that quarter would in some way damage the sacred Monroe Doctrine. This paper is among those which suggested at the beginning of the Mexican trouble that the United States ask cooperation of all the great powers in pacifying the country. Such a suggestion would have been able to settle the warring chiefs into a state of blood. Mexican revolts at accepting mediation from another nation, but far as to defy the inability has resulted in a life and

THE GAY AND THE QUIET.

As a purely selfish proposition, to whom does life grow more roseate of hue as the years speed away—to those who are the frankest of pleasure-seekers, always planning something fresh, ever "on the go," and right at home in the heart of a crowd, or to the more quiet folk who live in the background and are out of harmony anywhere else?

It is something of a question, in its way, because the lines divide between those who, in the language of the street, are "good mixers," and the others who run away from places where the many are gathered and find their pleasures with the few to their liking.

There is a joyous effervescence about the one variety quite missing in the other, and it is true that the pleasure-seekers do seem mightily to enjoy life wherever they go. If they work at all they hurry it through at the gay call of pleasure, and off they skip to a jolly little affair, where they will find plenty of froth, to be sure, but an afternoon or evening filled to the brim with laughing nothings, harmless, if not very deep.

And when they have chatted and laughed and jested the hours away to the gayest kind of a tune, away they go and plan all over again. How deep down the joyousness sinks, nobody knows but themselves, but it seems to be real, and to bubble up at the smallest provocation. And as they flit about from one thing to another, like birds on the wing, they seem to be as care-free, as happy and contented as the day is long.

And the more serious variety wonderingly look on and search their minds and their hearts and their soberer makeup to learn what they have missed or what they have gained, for they hear the laughter that sounds so spontaneous, watch the effervescence pass along and hear the glad little chatter; and, try their very best, the dear, serious souls cannot bubble and sparkle with the rest. And the most discouraging—or encouraging, as may be—part of it is, they cannot see where the joy comes in. Perhaps they may wish they might enter into the spirit of the gay laughter, the light little talk upon nothing at all, and the jests that are handed around, but they simply were not born or bent to shine in the throngs or to find their pleasures there. And as the ringing echoes of laughter grow faint in the distance, and as the pleasure-seekers hurry away on their never-ending quest, the quieter ones thoughtfully try to measure up what they have gained and what they have missed. For life and excitement and change are found where the pleasure-seekers abound, and the way of the others runs through more prosaic channels.

And which would they follow if they might follow whither they would?

Well, if they might, they would follow a Dr. Johnson out on the crowded London streets, they would note his splendid responsiveness to the sights and scenes rushing in upon him with a mighty tide of interest, and they would know it was idle to plan any fantastic amusement to stir a man like that. They would hear him vigorously declare that when a man grows tired of the diversions to be found on the streets, just for the looking, he is weary of living, and they would pray that they, too, might find their pleasures in similar pursuits.

Or they would trail close in the footsteps of a Scott along the mountainside of the lakes, and as they caught some of the reflected delights on the way, they would remember that

"The pleasure in my heart I bore long after it was seen no more."

And they would be sure that the deepest delights of all are those not artificially planned.

They would reflect that while the gay-hearted searchers after pleasure apparently enjoy the hours crowded with fun and many-sided diversion, they are not storing up within themselves a single thing to draw upon for the many tomorrows when amusement and excitement may not be found for the planning. They may laugh and be joyous when close to the heart of the glad, festive crowds, but when the jolly little affairs are not forthcoming, will be self-forces be strong enough to keep them joyous and gay just the same. The quieter ones doubt it, because folk who depend upon events crowding upon events to stir them are not of the kind who have something within that makes them respond to the vital things in the world, something strong in its very simplicity.

And while they would think that they might be missing the pretty, soft froth that gathers at the top of the life cup they would be sure they were drinking in of the things worth while.

And so they would be quite satisfied though they were not fashioned by nature to join the gayer throngs, festive as those throngs always appear.

FRANCES SHAFFER.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.

Lecture on Mental Defect and State Duty to Defectives.

On Friday evening, April 24, Arthur E. Hamilton, secretary of the Second International Eugenics Congress and also connected with the Carnegie Institute at Cold Spring Harbor, spoke to a keenly interested audience at the Y. M. C. A. hall on the subject of mental defect and the state's duty toward mental defectives. Mr. Hamilton said that the subject of mental defect was one which was cloudy in all minds but that in speaking he would use the term feeble-minded in its broad sense including all grades. This problem is one which reaches out in all directions, vitally affecting our social life but Mr. Hamilton confined his discussion to its hereditary aspects. He showed many interesting slides illustrating the working out of the Mendelian law showing that qualities are inherited as units. One of the interesting slides showed how that the crossing of white and black Andalusian chickens produce a blue in the first generation and in the following generations percentages are approximately 25 per cent black, 50 per cent blue and 25 per cent white. Mr. Hamilton pointed out to tell how certain hereditary laws which had been discovered in regard to the inheritance of color of eyes, shortened fingers and hair in the human race and how they were now working on the really important part of this problem, the inheritance of mental and moral qualities. There were charts showing how alcoholism and criminal tendencies and mental defect reappear in generation after generation.

Mr. Hamilton then showed pictures of the different types and told how he had seen many of these same types in going about Ulster county that day.

After showing these slides Mr. Hamilton made a plea that the people recognize the great prevalence of mental defect in their community, and how great a menace these defectives are to themselves and to the community, and when not a menace, a drag, make public their recognition of this danger and do all in their power to aid in solving the problem.

At the extraordinary session of the legislature which is to be held this May a bill providing for increased care of mental defectives is to be passed upon and Mr. Hamilton suggested that this was the most needed and most immediate way of helping the solution of this problem.

A motion was then made by Rear Admiral Higginson that a resolution approving the passage of the bill for the increased appropriation be sent to our senator and assemblyman. This motion was passed unanimously.

GRANGE AND FARM WOMEN

Washington Grangers Reply to Secretary Houston's Query Regarding Their Future Needs.

A few months ago Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston sent out inquiries, asking for opinions regarding the future needs and problems of the farm women of the country, and thousands of replies have come back to him, representing a great variety of opinions. The matter was taken up in a big Grange meeting in the state of Washington and a very complete answer made to Mr. Houston's questions and forwarded to him. Some extracts from that communication indicate well the broad view of this great question:

"We respectfully hold that in this broad, fair land of ours, every farm home should be a sanitary abode and in order to free the farmer's wife from the soul-warping drudgery in incessant toil and to secure to her the degree of leisure necessary to develop and cultivate latent and dormant talents and abilities, that every home should be equipped with labor-saving devices, such as—water under pressure, cold and hot—a sewerage system or sanitary cesspool—power to run washing machine, wringer, churn, etc.—a light plant—cabineted kitchen, and the many useful and clever devices for saving time and steps.

"We are also of the opinion that the humdrum existence of the average farmer's wife and the lack of labor-saving devices in the average farm home, are not due, except in rare cases, to the parsimoniousness and selfish conduct of the farmer husband, but are caused by economic and social conditions over which the individual farmer has no control.

"We are also agreed that the economic, social, educational and home forces that can elevate the agricultural pursuit to a higher estate will automatically bring about the betterment of conditions for the farmer's wife.

"We are convinced that the forces that give hope, assurance and promise of independence to the farmer and his wife are those enunciated in our order's declaration of principles of action and all those that make for economic justice and freedom, namely:

"Co-operation in buying, selling and manufacturing farm products and a direct relation between the consumer, and producer, farmer and manufacturer.

"The scientific development and management of transportation; of the nation's natural resources and all other social and industrial affairs.

"The establishment of a co-operative banking and credit system, making it possible for the farmers of this country to secure the capital necessary for scientific production and efficient distribution on a 'long time' 'low per cent' plan, thus taking from the fundamental industry the burden and the curse of indebtedness."

"It's a Little Dandy"

That's the opinion of people who have seen the CAR-NATION-CAR. How can they afford to put up such a high price looking car at such a small cost?

CAR-NATION
Four passenger ..... $520.00 f. o. b. Detroit
Two passenger ..... $495.00 f. o. b. Detroit

With careful study on several parts which run up into money on an automobile and having the necessary machinery to turn out those parts in one-half the time that it would cost to turn out on much higher priced cars, we have brought those parts down to a minimum, therefore dividing our profits with you. You will never regret it if you own this car, and furthermore a year's guarantee goes with it. Will other automobile concerns do that? Try it and see. It will be worth your while to look us up.

Warren K. Van Vliet of Jersey City spent a few days with his family on Broadway.

MANAGER STONE DISCHARGED.

Offense, if Any, Seems to Have Been Purely Technical.

After a trial Julius Stone, manager of the Lyric theater on the Strand, who was arrested on a charge of allowing children under sixteen admittance to the theater, was discharged this morning in recorder's court. Stone was represented by William D. Brinnier, Jr.

This was the first case to be tried since the police department started the crusade against allowing children under 16 years of age to enter a theater unattended by a guardian or parent, as a result of the revolting facts recently brought out by the police. The case came up for trial before Recorder Grogan on Monday and was partly tried, the prosecution having finished its case when Mr. Brinnier made several motions to discharge Mr. Stone, which were denied by the recorder, who stated that he would hold the defendant unless it could be proved that the children had their proper guardian or parent, or unless it could be proved that the children were not in the theater.

Mr. Brinnier contended that if the children were in the theater they were there with a proper custodian and that it was not the duty of Stone to make each person when they have children with them to show their authority for bringing them to the theater. It was brought out on the trial that the two boys, Frank and John Gill, were at the Lyric theater on April 18, and went to the box office to purchase tickets and were refused. About ten minutes later the boys, in company with two older persons, were allowed admittance and stayed to see the performance.

My First Meeting With My Husband

It Gave Me a Shock

By MARTHA V. MONROE

When I went to visit my Aunt Martha at East Arlington it was in the spring of the year, and I was delighted to be in the country. I sat on the porch most of the time watching a pair of birds building a nest in a tree near the house and listening to their twittering. My cousins were all very kind to me, doing everything in their power to contribute to my enjoyment. Tom was in business in the city, but came out on Saturdays and stayed till Monday morning.

Tom had a friend, Alan Irving, whom he said he had picked out for me. Any girl who is fancy free is interested in a man who has been picked out for her, and I was very curious to see Mr. Irving. I asked Tom to describe him to me, but could get nothing out of him except nonsense. Tom promised to bring him out for the week end as soon as he could get him, but Mr. Irving was so popular and in such demand that Tom found it difficult to find a time when he was disengaged.

"I THOUGHT HE WAS AN ESCAPED LUNATIC"

Very naturally I looked forward to meeting Mr. Irving and was anxious to make a good impression upon him when he arrived. My favorite dress, a dainty white voile, I kept fresh for the purpose. On no account would I wear it till the eventful day when I should meet the man who might possibly be my husband. I wondered whether he would like me and whether I would like him. Then I remembered that men are less impressionable than women in such matters, and while I was indulging in fancies about him he probably never gave me a thought.

One day my aunt and cousins went to the city for a day's shopping. They kept no servant, doing all the work themselves. Consequently, on this occasion the work was left for me to do. I am not adapted by nature to housework as some women are, who can cook a dinner in dinner dress. On the contrary, I become hot, my clothes become soiled and I am irritated. My aunt and cousins did not get off till late, and before I had set the house to rights I was obliged to prepare my lunch. I spoiled what I tried to cook and dropped grease on my dress. Then, to "crown a crown of sorrows," a sharp ring came from the telephone, and I was warned by the authorities of the lunatic asylum a few miles distant that an inmate of the institution had escaped, and all persons in the neighborhood were being notified in order that they might look out for him.

"What do you wish me to do," I asked, "in case he comes here—hold him till your men come for him? I'm alone and entirely unequal to the task myself."

"Oh, no," was the reply, "not that! The man is dangerous. We are notifying persons in order that they may take precautions against being injured by him."

"Oh, heavens! What is he like?" "Medium height, dark hair and wears a mustache only. He carries a suit case, having taken one that doesn't belong to him in order to make the gatekeeper believe he was a member of the asylum staff or a visitor. He also has an umbrella. Don't be frightened. Our men will soon take him in."

The click that followed hanging up the receiver seemed to leave me alone with the maniac. There had been protection in talking with some one even over a phone. I shut down every window and locked every door. Against some of the doors I moved furniture. The front door had a chain on it, which I put in place to prevent an opening. As soon as I had barricaded myself I sat down and shivered.

After awhile I concluded that if I did something to occupy my mind I would become a lunatic myself. I got up and cleared away the lunch dishes. I was so agitated that my face became smudged with lampblack, though I was unconscious of it, and I spilled soup all over my dress. As soon as I had cleared away the lunch I busied myself doing everything I could find to do, even to sweeping floors that had been swept before. In this way I kept myself occupied till about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the ax fell.

Looking out through the front window, there was the lunatic, suit case, umbrella and all, coming up the walk to the house. I caught at a dresser to save myself from falling and stood there till I heard the doorbell ring. Then I was obliged to steady myself by putting the other hand on the back of a chair. Several minutes passed, when the doorbell rang again. My only hope was that the maniac would become convinced that there was no one in the house and would go away.

It occurred to me to telephone the authorities at the asylum that their patient was at our house, but I dared not make the slightest sound, for fear of being heard by the man himself. So I kept still, scarcely daring to breathe. He rang the bell three times; then, instead of going away to murder some one else, he deliberately sat down on a bench on the porch. I could not see him, but I could hear every motion he made.

I could not remain where I was. I must go downstairs on tiptoe to see if I had left any weak spot in my fortification. On turning I caught a reflection of myself in the mirror of the dresser. Agitated as I was, I could not but notice my appearance. My dress, a very old one that I had put on to do housework, was bedraggled with soup and spotted with grease. Over my right eye was a smudge, and on the left side of my nose was another. As to my hair, tousled is not strong enough to describe it. But of what importance was this when a maniac was sitting quietly on the porch waiting to effect an entrance to murder me? I did not give my appearance a thought, but went noiselessly down the staircase. I had drawn every curtain below its window sill, not leaving a crack that would admit a streak of sunlight so I could be seen.

I examined all points of ingress and, finding everything as secure as I could make it, thought what next I could do. There was no telephone booth, the instrument being in the dining room. It occurred to me to go upstairs, bring down blankets with which to cover it, so as to deaden the sound, and inform the asylum rangers of the lunatic's presence. Having got the blankets and covered myself and the phone, I put the receiver to my ear. If I had been obliged to ring I would not have dared make the call.

"What number?"

"Give me the East Arlington Lunatic asylum at once."

"The line is busy."

That's all I got out of "central," but I heard two women bidding each other goodby, and they spent half an hour doing so, while I was kept waiting with a lunatic on the porch. When I had heard the last goodby I called for the asylum and gave my information. I was told that a force of attendants would be sent at once.

Throwing off the blankets, I went to a window of the drawing room, near which the maniac sat, and listened. I heard nothing, but smelled tobacco. The man while waiting to get at me was quietly smoking. Then suddenly he got up and walked to the steps, and I heard an exclamation. Could it be that relief had come—that I was saved?

There were steps without and a babel of voices, followed by a jerk at the doorbell.

What should I do? I was not sure what to do. I did nothing.

A loud rap at the door.

My aunt's and my cousin's voices (including Tom's) outside.

"For heaven's sake!" cried my aunt.

"What has happened to the girl?"

I unlocked and unchained the door.

There stood a number of persons, three men from the asylum, my aunt and cousins and the lunatic. Every eye was turned with anxiety on me.

By this time I knew that I had made a goose of myself. I gave a sickly smile.

"I thought," I stammered, pointing to the man with the suit case, "that he was an escaped lunatic."

There was a burst of laughter.

"He's my friend, Alan Irving," said Tom. "He's not very bright, but I wouldn't quite consider him a lunatic."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed my Cousin Bess. "What have you been doing to yourself?"

Then I remembered my soiled dress, my smudged face and, turning, fled.

Tom had made an unexpected arrangement to bring Mr. Irving out with him for the week end. Tom had missed the train, and Irving had come out alone.

So this was the result of my dreams of my first meeting with the man who had been picked out for me; my keeping fresh my most becoming dress; my hopes of making a favorable impression! Could I have made a worse one? I was followed to my room by my Cousins Bess and Julia, who found me sobbing convulsively and in whose arms I gradually recovered my equanimity.

When I went downstairs Mr. Irving was kind enough to say to me, "Of all things I admire, a brave man and a cowardly woman stand at the head."

He afterward declared that, untidy and smudged as I was when he first saw me, I was comely. But that was flattery.

We made a match of it after all.

My First Meeting With My Husband

It Gave Me a Shock

By MARTHA V. MONROE

When I went to visit my Aunt Martha at East Arlington it was in the spring of the year, and I was delighted to be in the country. I sat on the porch most of the time watching a pair of birds building a nest in a tree near the house and listening to their twittering. My cousins were all very kind to me, doing everything in their power to contribute to my enjoyment. Tom was in business in the city, but came out on Saturdays and stayed till Monday morning.

Tom had a friend, Alan Irving, whom he said he had picked out for me. Any girl who is fancy free is interested in a man who has been picked out for her, and I was very curious to see Mr. Irving. I asked Tom to describe him

"I thought he was an escaped lunatic" to me, but could get nothing out of him except nonsense. Tom promised to bring him out for the week end as soon as he could get him, but Mr. Irving was so popular and in such demand that Tom found it difficult to find a time when he was disengaged. Very naturally I looked forward to meeting Mr. Irving and was anxious to make a good impression upon him when he arrived. My favorite dress, a dainty white voile, I kept fresh for the purpose. On no account would I wear it till the eventful day when I should meet the man who might possibly be my husband. I wondered whether he would like me and whether I would like him. Then I remembered that men are less impressionable than women in such matters, and while I was indulging in fancies about him he probably never gave me a thought.

One day my aunt and cousins went to the city for a day's shopping. They kept no servant, doing all the work themselves. Consequently, on this occasion the work was left for me to do. I am not adapted by nature to housework as some women are, who can cook a dinner in dinner dress. On the contrary, I become hot, my clothes become soiled and I am irritated. My aunt and cousins did not get out till late, and before I had set the house to rights I was obliged to prepare my lunch. I spoiled what I tried to cook and dropped grease on my dress. Then, to "crown a crown of sorrows," a sharp ring came from the telephone, and I was warned by the authorities of the lunatic asylum a few miles distant that an inmate of the institution had escaped, and all persons in the neighborhood were being notified in order that they might look out for him.

"What do you wish me to do," I asked, "in case he comes here—hold him till your men come for him? I'm alone and entirely unequal to the task myself."

"Oh, no," was the reply, "not that! The man is dangerous. We are notifying persons in order that they may take precautions against being injured by him."

"Oh, heavens! What is he like?" "Medium height, dark hair and wears a mustache only. He carries a suit case, having taken one that doesn't belong to him in order to make the gatekeeper believe he was a member of the asylum staff or a visitor. He also has an umbrella. Don't be frightened. Our men will soon take him in."

The click that followed hanging up the receiver seemed to leave me alone with the maniac. There had been protection in talking with some one even over a phone. I shut down every window and locked every door. Against some of the doors I moved furniture. The front door had a chain on it, which I put in place to prevent an opening. As soon as I had barricaded myself I sat down and shivered.

After awhile I concluded that if I do something to occupy my mind I would become a lunatic myself. I got up and cleared away the lunch dishes. I was so agitated that my face became smudged with lampblack, though I was unconscious of it, and I spilled soup all over my dress. As soon as I had cleared away the lunch I busied myself doing everything I could find to do, even to sweeping floors that had been swept before. In this way I kept myself occupied till about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the ax fell.

Looking out through the front window, there was the lunatic, suit case, umbrella and all, coming up the walk to the house. I caught at a dresser to save myself from falling and stood there till I heard the doorbell ring. Then I was obliged to steady myself by putting the other hand on the back of a chair. Several minutes passed, when the doorbell rang again. My only hope was that the maniac would become convinced that there was no one in the house and would go away.

It occurred to me to telephone the authorities at the asylum that their patient was at our house, but I dared not make the slightest sound, for fear of being heard by the man himself. So I kept still, scarcely daring to breathe. He rang the bell three times; then, instead of going away to murder some one else, he deliberately sat down on a bench on the porch. I could not see him, but I could hear every motion he made.

I could not remain where I was. I must go downstairs on tiptoe to see if I had left any weak spot in my fortification. On turning I caught a reflection of myself in the mirror of the dresser. Agitated as I was, I could not but notice my appearance. My dress, a very old one that I had put on to do housework, was bedraggled with soup and spotted with grease. Over my right eye was a smudge, and on the left side of my nose was another. As to my hair, tousled is not strong enough to describe it. But of what importance was this when a maniac was sitting quietly on the porch waiting to effect an entrance to murder me? I did not give my appearance a thought, but went noiselessly down the staircase. I had drawn every curtain below its window sill, not leaving a crack that would admit a streak of sunlight so I could be seen.

I examined all points of ingress and, finding everything as secure as I could make it, thought what next I could do. There was no telephone booth, the instrument being in the dining room. It occurred to me to go upstairs, bring down blankets with which to cover it, so as to deaden the sound, and inform the asylum managers of the lunatic's presence. Having got the blankets and covered myself and the phone, I put the receiver to my ear. If I had been obliged to ring I would not have dared make the call.

"What number?" "Give me the East Arlington Lunatic asylum at once."

BISHOP BUSINESS CLAIM TO BE TRIED

Court of Appeals Reverses the Appellate Division and Affirms Judge Hasbrouck's Decision—Opinion in Important Damage Claim.

Copies of the opinion of the court of appeals in the Bishop boarding house case, which affects also the claims of other Ashokan claimants, have been received in town by counsel who argued the case. The opinion of the court was written by Judge Chase, and all the other judges who were sitting when the case was argued concur with him.

The court's decision and opinion are important because they answer the fine questions which were certified to the court by the appellate division, and construe the water supply act in relation to business claims.

As stated in The Freeman last week where the decision of the court was handed down, the court of appeals reverses the order of the appellate division, and affirms the order of Judge Hasbrouck at special term.

DeForest Bishop and Frank Bishop conducted a summer boarding house on property owned by their mother in the town of Olive. The property was acquired by the city of New York for reservoir purposes and their mother's claim was tried and an award made to her for $17,746.53. The Bishop brothers occupied the property under an agreement with her by which they supported her and gave her $50 a year, paid the taxes and insurance and kept the buildings in repair. They also conducted a livery business on the farm, principally in connection with the boarding house business. The brothers presented a claim against the city of New York, which was tried before Business Damage Commission No. 1, and that commission made an award to them of $7,250.

The commission's report came before Judge Hasbrouck for confirmation, but Judge Hasbrouck found the commission had proceeded on an erroneous theory in making the award, and he refused to confirm it, and appointed Messrs. Wellington, Schoonmaker and Miller a commission to hear and determine the claim. Judge Hasbrouck held that the business should be charged with interest on the capital invested in the real estate and personal property used for the business, that the value of the services of the owners and their families should be charged against the business, and that a like charge against the business should be made for the market value of the produce raised on the farm.

An appeal to the appellate division was taken by the Bishops and the appellate division nanced down a decision affirming Judge Hasbrouck's order except as to sending the case to another commission. The majority opinion of the appellate division held in effect that the damages to the business had been paid in the real estate award to Mrs. Bishop. Judge Howard dissented from the majority opinion.

Brown & Slosson, who had conducted the trial of the Bishop case from the beginning, appealed from the order of the appellate division to the court of appeals, where the case was argued sometime ago by Harrison T. Slosson on behalf of the Bishops and by William McM. Speer on behalf of the city of New York. The decision of the court of appeals was awaited with interest by the Ashokan claimants and by their counsel and by the city of New York because the Bishop case was the first of the business damage claims arising under the water supply act to be determined by the court of appeals. The only other decision by that court affecting business damage claims was in the Lasher-Burhans case, which also had been carried to that court by Brown & Slosson in the early stages of the Ashokan proceedings.

Court of Appeals Memorandum and Opinion.

The full text of the memorandum and opinion of the court of appeals is as follows:

In the matter of the application of the Board of Water Supply on behalf of the City of New York to acquire Real Estate under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905 and the Acts Amending Thereof, etc.

(Decided April 21, 1914.)
Appeal by DeForest Bishop and Frank Bishop, claimants, from an order of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the third judicial department, dated September 9, 1913, modifying and as modified affirming an order of the Ulster Special Term, which refused to confirm an award made to claimants by a commission appointed in proceedings to appraise and determine what, if any, damages certain claimants should be paid by reason of the board of water supply of the city of New York acquiring certain real property under chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, and the acts amending thereof.

On August 5, 1907, the appellants filed a claim with the board of water supply of the city of New York for damages to an established boarding house and livery business which was conducted by them in the town of Olive, county of Ulster, on the first day of June 1905.

On the application of the corporation counsel of the city of New York for and on behalf of said city, commissioners were duly appointed to appraise the amount of damages, if any, which the appellants and other named claimants had sustained.

After a hearing said commissioners of appraisal reported to the court by which report the damages of the appellants were fixed at $7,250, together with an allowance to counsel including disbursements of $556.50. The court at special term refused to confirm said report and it was wholly vacated and set aside and new commissioners were appointed to hear said claims and make awards thereon.

An appeal was taken from the order of the special term to the Appellate Division where the order of the special term was modified by striking therefrom the part thereof appointing new commissioners, and as so modified it was affirmed.

An appeal is taken to this court pursuant to an order of the Appellate Division granting leave to bring this appeal and certifying that the following questions of law have arisen which ought to be reviewed by this court, viz:

First.—In determining the value of an established business under Section 42, Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended by Section 9, Chapter 314 of the Laws of 1906, should interest upon the capital used in the business, whether real or personal property, be charged as an expense against the gross profits?

Second.—In determining the value of an established business under said Section 42, should the value of the services of the proprietor and the members of his family in the business be charged as an expense?

Third.—In determining the value of a farm boarding house business under said Section 42, should the market value of the farm produce consumed by the boarders be charged as an expense?

Fourth.—In the trial of a claim for damages to an established business under said Section 42, is the City of New York entitled to prove any circumstances in abatement of such damages which will tend to mitigate or lessen them?

Fifth.—Assuming the claimants, Bishop Brothers, conducted a summer boarding house and livery business upon a farm not owned by them, but owned by their mother, and whose boarders were non-residents of the county of Ulster, which farm and buildings thereon, were condemned and acquired by the City of New York under the provisions of Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905 as amended by Chapter 314 of the Laws of 1906, that their mother was awarded the value of the farm and buildings and received the award, was the summer boarding house and livery business conducted by the claimants on the property an established business within the meaning of the said acts, and can the claimants prosecute a claim for decrease in value if any such decrease there be?

Brown & Slosson (Harrison T. Slosson of counsel) for appellants.
Frank L. Folk, Corporation Counsel (William McM. Speer) for respondent.

Chase, J. The appellants' claim for damages is wholly dependent upon statutory provision. A reference to the statute under which the claim is filed, and on the statutes passed contemporaneously with it, is necessary to ascertain the extent to which the legislature intended to authorize the recovery of damages in cases where no such right existed at common law.

The state water supply commission was organized pursuant to chapter 723 of the laws of 1905. That act provides that a municipal corporation shall not have power to acquire, take or condemn lands for any new or additional sources of water supply until it has first submitted the maps and profiles therefor to said commission and until said commission shall have approved the same. The act provides in detail for submitting the maps and profiles to said commission and among other things it provides that they shall be accompanied by a plan or scheme to determine and provide for the payment of the proper compensation for any and all damages to persons or property, whether direct or indirect, which will result from the acquiring of said lands and the executing of said plans." It also provides that the commission shall determine whether the plans proposed are justified by public necessity, "and whether such plans are just and equitable to the other municipalities and civil divisions of the state affected thereby and to the inhabitants thereof."

By chapter 724 of the laws of 1905, passed simultaneously with the act establishing the state water supply commission, provision was made for the appointment of a board of water supply of the city of New York to provide an additional water supply for said city. Such board was thereafter appointed pursuant to preliminary steps an application was made by it in behalf of the city of New York to the state water supply commission for its approval under the statute of its plans and scheme for acquiring land and property necessary for the construction and maintenance of a reservoir and its appurtenances in the Catskill mountains to provide for such additional supply of pure and wholesome water for said city. While that application was pending before said state water supply commission certain sections of chapter 724 of the laws of 1905 were amended by chapter 314 of the laws of 1906. Section 42 of said act was amended so as to read as follows:

"The owner of any real estate not taken by virtue of this act and chapter seven hundred and twenty-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and five or of any established business on the first day of June, nineteen hundred and five, and situate in the counties of Ulster, Albany or Greene, and directly or indirectly decreased in value by reason of the acquiring of land by the city of New York for an additional water supply or for reason of the execution of any plans for such additional water supply by the city of New York under the provisions of this act and chapter seven hundred and twenty-three of the laws of nineteen hundred and five, their heirs, assigns or personal representatives shall have a right to damages for such decrease in value. The board of water supply of the city of New York may agree with the city of New York as to the amount of such damages, and if such agreement cannot be made such damages, if any, shall be determined in the manner providing for the ascertaining and determining the value of real estate taken under the provisions of this act, and the commissioners shall not be limited in the reception of evidence to the rules regulating the proof of direct damages. * * * A person employed in a manufacturing establishment, or in an established business, or upon any lands and is not an owner or part owner thereof or of an interest therein, in the counties of Ulster, Albany and Greene, whose manufacturing establishment, or established business is injured or destroyed, or whose lands are taken or acquired under or because of the provisions of this act, who has been so employed continuously for six months prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred and six, and who continues in such employment up to the time of such injury, destruction, taking or acquisition shall have a claim for damages against the city of New York equal to the salary paid such employee for the six months immediately preceding the first day of January, nineteen hundred and six. Such damages may be determined by agreement with the board of water supply of the city of New York. In case such agreement cannot be made such employee may maintain an action against the city of New York in the supreme court to recover such damages, not however to exceed the sum of the wages paid him for the six months immediately prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred and six."

Chapters 723 and 724 of the laws of 1905 as contemporaneous acts should be read together, and the board of water supply of the city of New York was right in assuming that it was necessary for it to obtain the approval of the state water supply commission to its plan to provide for an additional supply of pure and wholesome water of the city of New York, and the execution thereof.

In the decision by the state water supply commission of said application, which decision is dated May 14, 1906, the commission refer to the amendments of the statute in 1906 and say: "The amendments were prepared after consideration of the evidence produced and arguments made by the attorneys representing the objections upon the hearing. Also after a personal inspection of some of the territory proposed to be taken and the study of the laws of the state of Massachusetts and the method adopted by the metropolitan water board of that state having similar questions and the commission believes that the law as now amended makes fair and equitable provisions for the determination and payment of any and all damages both direct and indirect which may result from the execution of said plans, and that it also protects New York from paying exorbitant and improper damages."

The principal dam and reservoir constituting a part of the new Catskill mountain water supply system for the city of New York and commonly known as the Ashokan dam and reservoir, is nearly completed. It will occupy a territory about fourteen miles in length and about two miles in width and will contain 15,221 acres of land. It includes a strip of land about 1,000 feet in width around what will be the exterior line of the reservoir when filled. To make this vast reservoir possible it has been necessary to acquire by purchase or condemnation not only such vast area of land but several hundred dwellings and buildings, including shops, stores, mills, schools and churches which were standing thereon. It has resulted in removing from said territory about 2,000 inhabitants who were living in the seven villages and the scattered habitations within its boundaries and all the established and other business which were theretofore conducted thereon.

The mother of the appellants was the owner of a farm of 106 acres situated in said territory, which was taken by the city of New York by condemnation and she was awarded and paid therefor $17,746.53. The appellants had had possession thereof since 1895 under an agreement with their mother by which they supported her and gave to her fifty dollars per year and paid the taxes on the farm and the insurance on the buildings and kept the same in repair. Their occupancy, so far as appears, was a tenancy at will. There were on the farm buildings suitable to accommodate sixty or seventy boarders, and barns for the farm, and the livery, which was used in connection with such summer boarding house business. The boarding house and livery business continued about three years in the summer of each year. The appellants continued in the possession of the buildings until May, 1908.

Some of the preliminary questions involved on this appeal have been settled by the decision in People ex rel Burhans vs. City of New York (198 N. Y. 439). The right to damages for a decrease in the value of an established business is not confined to business established upon lands not condemned. Damages for a decrease in the value of an established business may be recovered although the lands on which the same is conducted have already been condemned and the city of New York has paid therefor. A municipality which is granted subject to specified conditions cannot accept the grant and reject the conditions.

In the proceeding by the city of New York to acquire title to the Bishop farm the appellants appeared by counsel and were given an opportunity to assert their ownership, if any, of an estate or right, legal or equitable, in said farm. They declined to assert any interest therein and they also declined to present to the commission a claim for damages by reason of a decrease in the value of their alleged established business and asserted that they would present such claim to a commission when appointed to hear claims of that kind.

The statute contemplates a proceeding to condemn the fee of the land and a proceeding to determine the damages arising from a decrease in the value of an established business. (Laws of 1905, chapter 724, sec. 42, as amended by chapter 314 of the laws of 1906.) These proceedings are separate and distinct although there seems to be no reason why a commission cannot be named with authority to hear claims presented under both statutes. If commissioners had been appointed to hear the claims of the Bishops, mother and sons, in economy of time and perhaps in a more satisfactory adjustment of the damages, but where one commission is appointed solely for the purpose of hearing claims for damages by reason of the city taking the fee of real property it is not legal error if a claimant refuses to submit his claim for damages arising from a decrease in the value of an established business to such commission and reserves his claim for such damages for consideration by a commission appointed with express authority to hear such claims. The appellants acquiesced in their mother asserting title to the farm and obtaining an award therefor based upon her ownership of the absolute fee of the land free and clear of an incumbrance. They should not now be heard in support of any claim except such as is wholly independent of the farm as such and of any leasehold or other interest therein.

The boarding and livery business was conducted on the farm, but that business as a business was owned by the appellants, while the farm as a farm was owned by their mother. It was held as we have seen in the Burhans case (supra) that the statute contemplates a payment of the damages for a decrease in the value of an established business although the real property on which the business is conducted is itself condemned and taken by the city. The decrease in value of such an established business must be determined by the evidence available and it must be estimated in a case like the one now considered in view of the uncertain tenure of the appellants' holding of the lands on which the business was conducted and of the profits, if any, in conducting the business as a boarding house and livery business.

The statute contemplates that the city should pay a fair and equitable amount for any and all damages to persons and property, both direct and indirect, which result from the execution of the plans for a water supply. It is expressly provided that the commission shall not be limited in the reception of evidence to the rules regulating the proof of direct damages. The liberal spirit everywhere apparent in the statute should be exercised in determining damages to an established business, but the damages allowed should nevertheless be real and not speculative or merely fanciful. The intention of the statute is to compensate persons deprived of, or injured in a business that had become fixed and established. It is not the purpose of the statute to give gifts, or grant pensions. Where an established business is decreased in value without being wholly destroyed the best evidence procurable to show the decrease must be produced. When, as in this case, the decrease amounts to a total destruction of the business at the place where it was conducted, it is essential in showing its value to ascertain the profit that was derived from it. If such business actually produced a profit it can be shown although it has no established market value as a business. (Earle v. Commonwealth, 180 Mass. 579.) A farming business may be an established business within the meaning of the statute. (Allen v. Commonwealth, 188 Mass. 59.) It is not necessary to consider whether there was an established farm business conducted on the Bishop farm within the meaning of the statute. No claim is filed for any such established business. The claim now before us for consideration is based upon an established boarding house and livery business. Treating the claim as such, we refer to the questions submitted to us.

First.—The capital invested in a business represents an expense equal to the market rate of interest thereon. The appellants did not own the real property, but should charge against the business the rental paid therefor as far as it pertains to the boarding house and livery business. They should also charge against the capital invested by them in personal property used therewith the market rate of interest thereon and a reasonable amount for the depreciation of such personal property.

Second.—In determining the profit in maintaining a business there should be charged against it the reasonable cost or value of all labor necessary to maintain it. The fact that such labor is performed in part by the owner and by members of his household does not exempt such labor from consideration in determining the value of an established business within the meaning of the statute under consideration. (See Sawyer v. Commonwealth, 185 Mass. 256.)

Third.—The market value of the farm produce used at the boarding house and fed to the horses used in the livery business constituted an expense to the established business the same as if such produce had been purchased from other sources. If such produce had not been taken from the farm for the boarding house and livery business it could have been sold for its reasonable value in the market. It is not the profits of the farm that are now under consideration. If the appellants had presented a claim for the profits of the farm as an established business, assuming that it could have been maintained as an established business, it would have been necessary to have charged against the proceeds of the farm all of the expenses of the year in its maintenance. As a boarding house and livery business the appellants are only required to charge against the business the expense of maintaining it as such wholly independent of the farm. The proceeds of the farm, therefore, must be charged against the established boarding and livery business to determine its value.

Fourth.—If a person making a claim for decrease in the value of an established business is fortunate in developing a business at another place or obtaining favorable employment it cannot be used to mitigate or lessen the damages for which the city of New York is liable. A claim for such damages should be ascertained as of the date when the established business is taken or decreased.

Fifth.—An established business may exist upon land condemned wholly independent of the lands so condemned. The value of such business and its permanency are questions of fact to be determined by the commission.

We are of the opinion, therefore, that the special term was right in refusing to confirm the report of the commission herein and that the issues arising from the claim by the appellants and its dispute by the city of New York should be again considered by a commission for the purpose of determining what amount, if any, should be paid the appellants by reason of their ownership of the boarding and livery business at the time when the real property was taken by the city of New York pursuant to the statute.

The first, second, third and fifth questions certified should be answered in the affirmative and the fourth question in the negative. The order of the appellate division should be reversed and that of the special term affirmed, with costs in both courts.

MORTALITY IN BABY CHICKS

Often Attributed to Parent Stock When Fault Is Really Not Inherent—Test for Cause.

The large mortality in baby chicks is very often attributed to the parent stock when the fault is really not inherent. In an effort to ascertain the real cause for this condition make a test.

Remove carefully all traces of food from the brooders, leaving none whatever near them. Take some of the chicks that have the care of the mother hen and place them in the brooder over night. Continue this for several nights in succession, being sure to return them to the care of their mother each morning. Each morning note the condition of these little fellows, and if they are not injured or are none the worse for their experience in the brooder you will know that the temperature in the brooder is about right and the fault does not lie in that direction.

With the brooder eliminated as a possible cause for the mortality, you must begin to look elsewhere. This narrows itself down to one of two causes—improper feeding or lack of exercise. Now test for the food cause. Change your conditions of feeding radically and note the result. If the cause is not from the feeding, it must be from lack of exercise. Correct this by supplying them with a proper amount of this requisite.

Simply finding your chicks dead in the brooder in the morning when they are all crowded in a corner is not sufficient proof that they died from too low a temperature. Sick, weakly and indisposed chicks will always huddle together whether they are cold or not.

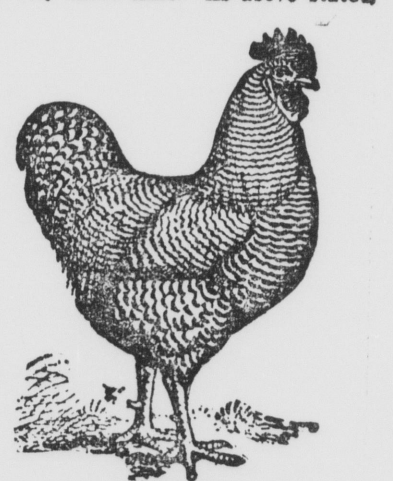

They will not huddle together, however, should the temperature be excessively high, in which event they will spread apart, and when found dead will usually be lying on their breasts. This condition, however, is seldom noted, as it takes a very high temperature to cause them to spread apart and to cause their death.

BREED POULTRY FOR RESULTS

Difficulty in Mating Unrelated Birds Is to Find Strains With Like Characteristics.

"Few people realize the advantages of breeding together unrelated birds. Every time they are mated a decided improvement is had in their young, in exhibition and utility qualities, size and extreme hardiness." The above statement was made by E. R. Philo of New York, a man who has done much experimenting along the line of breeding.

Line breeding is dangerous unless thoroughly understood, and the work of years can be demolished in a very short time. As above stated, the progeny of unrelated fowls is thrifty and high in utility, points which every breeder strives for.

The greatest handicap in mating unrelated birds is to find strains with like characteristics. When rearing a strain of Rocks for egg production it is sometimes hard to find a suitable male, bred for the same results as the hens he is to be mated with. Many breeders have distinct lines of birds, bred for the same results, but wholly disconnected along blood lines. In this way they can furnish their patrons new blood whenever desired.

Many a good strain is run down or ruined because of lack of experience of the breeder. One must know how and why the breed to obtain best success. A good pen of layers should not be mated with a male or unknown heredity. If a flock of birds is purchased for an egg-laying strain, to keep up their qualities, the owner must know how they were bred, and adopt the same plan with them as the originator.

Sun and Shade.

Plenty of sun and shade are necessary in the life of the rapidly growing young chicks. Coolness and shade from the hot sun are important. Trees and bushes make the best shade, but if they are not available artificial means can be provided that are almost as efficient.

A SMOKING CASE

Story of a Woman's Exchange

By EDITH V. ROSS

After Chester Barnes turned his thirtieth birthday, having tired of society, when he came to his room from business in the evening he found it irksome to get into evening dress. So he dined in business clothes, thinking he would dress after dinner for any function to which he might have been invited—for the theater, opera or whatever entertainment was in store for him. But after dinner he found it more difficult to exert himself than before and, sitting down to his evening paper or a book, failed to arise till 10 or 11 o'clock, to get into his pajamas and go to bed. After having done this quite continuously for a few months, one evening he mused thus:

"There's no use denying the fact any longer that I've outgrown social, or rather, society, life, which is hollow, selfish and altogether unprofitable. I'm getting out of it very fast and will never go back to it. I can't marry because the girls I associate with are all brought up to spend money, and I am not earning enough to supply my own wants. As for marrying a helpmate, I can't do that because I don't know any girls of that kind. Being forced to live in bachelor quarters alone, I'll procure books from the libraries and read. But first I must get the bareness out of this room and make it as homelike as possible."

Mr. Barnes consulted with an elderly lady friend as to how he might get the "bareness" out of his room and was advised to buy a few attractive pictures to cover the walls and knickknacks to adorn his furniture. He bought the pictures, and as for the knickknacks, he found a profusion of articles that no man would ever have thought of at a woman's exchange. One thing he purchased there which only a woman would have dreamed of, though it was useful to the sterner sex, was a case for smoker's articles made of a woolen fabric bound with silk and decorated with a number of beautiful bowknots.

Barnes laughed at this when he saw it, but bought it because it was so distinctly feminine. When he got it to his room he hung it on the wall, stringing his pipes along the chain of loops, expecting to keep them there till the smoking case became odoriferous. He also dropped a rubber tobacco pouch in a pocket probably intended for it by the fair smoker, then sat down in his easy chair to admire his decorations.

They all looked attractive and were a great improvement to the room. But there was still something wanting. Barnes knew very well what it was. He had got rid of the bareness, but not the loneliness. Going to his smoking case, he selected a pipe and took his tobacco pouch from its pocket. With it out came a bit of paper, which floated down to the floor. He picked it up and read in a feminine hand as follows:

Lonely Bachelor—If this work of my hands fails to such, I sympathize with you in your loneliness. Perhaps when you read this you will be passing an evening by yourself in your room. If so, think of the girl who is doing the same after teaching all day, making things like this smoking case to help to keep herself alive. By the bye, don't you think I struck a bright idea when I thought of making it?

Ned thought she struck a brighter idea when she put this missive in it, though at first he was disposed to consider her doing so a trifle—well, a trifle irregular, but it occurred to him that a girl stupid enough to make a smoking case out of wool and silk, adorned with bowknots, might suppose she could put out such a message without her identity being discovered. However, there is something attractive to men in woman's misconception of man's requirements, and vice versa. At any rate, Ned was very much interested in his find.

He was more than interested. He was sensibly, or, rather, sentimentally, affected by the sympathy of this poor girl, who was like himself yearning for something which nature intended for her, but which she was denied. He lighted his pipe and began puffing clouds of smoke, through which he formed conceptions of her. Was she dark? Was she fair? Was she disposed to be merry? How would she look sitting on the other side of the table doing some bit of needlework, not to sell to strangers, but for some one she loved?

This simple picture grew into others, yet all of the same kind. The room became one of a number. There was a faint cry. She arose and went to an adjoining room, from which it had issued. There was a lullaby, which in a few minutes ceased. The dreamer arose and looked into the room where the woman and child were and saw the baby sleeping, the mother bending over it.

Leaving the child, they walked back, hand in hand, and drawing a sofa before the fireplace, sat together and, whispering, laid plans, in which the little sleeper was the central figure. The dream changed. He came home after business to meet her at the door, and she gave him a kiss mechanically, for she was troubled. She told him that their oldest child, now a boy of seven, was ill. The doctor had been called for and would soon be there. Going upstairs, the father put his hand on his child's hot brow and spoke tenderly to the little sufferer. Then he turned away, mutely pressing the mother's hand.

The doctor came, and after an examination a serious look settled on his face. Then followed a night of anxious watching and waiting, while the child tossed and moaned, and every moan cut the parents' hearts like a knife. The doctor came again in the morning and looked graver than yesterday. Before he left he told the man and wife to be prepared for the worst.

In the night a change came. Two alternatives arose before the dream, one that the woman came out of the sickroom with a blighted look on her face, saying, "It's all over." He groaned and shut the vision out by closing his eyes. When he opened them the other alternative was before him. "Ned, there is a change. He is sleeping quietly, and his skin is moist." He went to the sickroom and put his hand on the child's cheek, then turned and, clasping the mother in his arms, said fervently, "Thank God!"

Day dreams as well as those that come in sleep shift quickly. Ned saw himself prosperous, rich. He sat at one end of a dining table, his wife at the other, with children of all ages on either hand. The oldest was now a sturdy collegian, who had carried all the honors of his class; the next, a girl of nineteen, just engaged to one of her brother's classmates, while the others, boys and girls, rattled their knives and forks, making a greater clatter by all talking at once.

"Do you remember, dear," he said, "that smoking case you made of some woolen stuff bespattered with bowknots? That was the stupidest thing you ever did in your life. I can't imagine anything more ridiculous. Ha, ha!"

Ned Barnes had gradually been succumbing to the quieting influences of tobacco, and when he spoke these words he was dreaming in slumber. His loud "Ha, ha!" awakened him.

"By Jove," he exclaimed, yawning; "my dream must have been part while awake and part sleeping! I'd like to dream it all over again. No; not that part about the child dying! No, no!" He shuddered and gave a quick pull at his pipe. But no smoke came. It had gone out. Laying it aside, he arose, undressed and went to bed. But before going to sleep he made a resolution with a view of turning his dream into a reality, and the next day he put it into practice.

"Can you tell me," he said to the manager of the woman's exchange, "who made the smoking case I bought here the other day?"

The woman hesitated, asked why he wished to know, consulted with another woman, then said that the article had been made by a young girl whose necessities were considerable. If giving her address would be of any benefit to her it would be given. Barnes said that it would. He had been so pleased with the article she had made that he would like a dozen of them. To this the lady replied that he could order a dozen through her, but he said in so large an order he would prefer to deal directly with the manufacturer. After much delay he finally got the address.

Ned was tempted to write the girl that he had purchased her smoking case and had received her missive; but, deeming this incautious, he set about finding some one who would give him an introduction to her. He at length succeeded in this and found in the girl he sought one whose family had in former days been prominent, but whose property had melted away. She had never known anything but adversity, though she had inherited from her mother the manner of a lady. She was rather pretty and generally attractive. Barnes, under the influence of the episode of which she was ignorant, took quite a fancy to her. He followed up the acquaintance, and gradually it appeared to him that, though she was stupid on the surface, beneath was a deep current of common sense.

Since she was the only girl he knew with whom he could begin married life on practical principles, he resolved to ask her to marry him. He preceded his proposition by taking from his pocket the missive he had found in the smoking case and handed it to her. She read it and looked up at him with cheeks aflame.

"Where did you get it?" she asked. "I bought the smoking case you sold through the woman's exchange. You ask in the note if I don't think you struck a bright idea in making the smoking case. I certainly do. I repudiate all the rest you said and propose to end our mutual loneliness by a union. Will you marry me?"

That was a dozen or fifteen years ago. Mrs. Barnes proved an admirable manager, thus giving her husband a great advantage in making a living as well as laying up a competence. Besides this, as a family man he gained that concentration which he had lacked before his marriage. Thirdly, as soon as he had a wife and children to take care of all his friends were disposed to help him. The consequence is that today the substance of his dream has come to pass—he is prosperous and happy, with a loving family.

The smoking case is treasured in the Barnes family. When the children ask what it is their father facetiously tells them that it is a monument of mamma's genius, but when they ask how it is so and a girl asks the question he tells her that he hopes she will show as much talent for getting a husband as her mother. If one of his sons makes inquiries about it the father simply tells him that it is an evidence of women's understanding of the requirements of men.

Tourist Has Thrilling Time Crossing
Over Wittenberg Mountain.

Snow and ice are still four and five feet deep in some places in the Catskills, and it will require several weeks of warm weather before it is all melted.

A tourist making a tramp through the Catskills stopped one night last week at Moonhawk Lodge, at the Wittenberg Club, in Maltbie Hollow, and remained over night with the Hon. Charles T. Coutant, who was spending the night there with Supervisors' Clerk Christopher K. Loughran.

The following morning the traveler continued on his way, intending to climb Wittenberg mountain, and then continue over into the Woodland Valley.

Today Mr. Coutant received a letter from the traveler, who said that in getting to the top of Wittenberg he had much trouble on account of the snow and ice, which in some places was four and five feet deep under the ledges. He camped on the top of Wittenberg amid the snow, which he melted for water, and during the night the weather became so cold that half an inch of ice was formed in his pails.

A SMOKING CASE

Story of a Woman's Exchange

By EDITH V. ROSS

After Chester Barnes turned his thirtieth birthday, having tired of society, when he came to his room from business in the evening he found it irksome to get into evening dress. So he dined in business clothes, thinking he would dress after dinner for any function to which he might have been invited—for the theater, opera or whatever entertainment was in store for him. But after dinner he found it more difficult to exert himself than before and, sitting down to his evening paper or a book, failed to arise till 10 or 11 o'clock, to get into his pajamas and go to bed. After having done this quite continuously for a few months, one evening he mused thus:

"There's no use denying the fact any longer that I've outgrown social, or, rather, society, life, which is hollow, selfish and altogether unprofitable. I'm getting out of it very fast and will never go back to it. I can't marry because the girls I associate with are all brought up to spend money, and I am not earning enough to supply my own wants. As for marrying a helpmate, I can't do that because I don't know any girls of that kind. Being forced to live in bachelor quarters alone, I'll procure books from the libraries and read. But first I must get the bareness out of this room and make it as homelike as possible."

Mr. Barnes consulted with an elderly lady friend as to how he might get the "bareness" out of his room and was advised to buy a few attractive pictures to cover the walls and knickknacks to adorn his furniture. He bought the pictures, and, as for the knickknacks, he found a profusion of articles that no man would ever have thought of at a woman's exchange. One thing he purchased there which only a woman would have dreamed of, though it was useful to the sterner sex, was a case for smoker's articles made of a woven fabric bound with silk and decorated with a number of beautiful bowknots.

Barnes laughed at this when he saw it, but bought it because it was so distinctly feminine. When he got it to his room he hung it on the wall, stringing his pipes along the chain of loops, expecting to keep them there till the smoking case became odoriferous. He also dropped a rubber tobacco pouch in a pocket probably intended for it by the fair smoker, then sat down in his easy chair to admire his decorations.

They all looked attractive and were a great improvement to the room. But there was still something wanting. Barnes knew very well what it was. He had got rid of the bareness, but not the loneliness. Going to his smoking case, he selected a pipe and took his tobacco pouch from its pocket. With it out came a bit of paper, which he laid down to the floor. He picked it up and read in a feminine hand as follows:

"Lonely Bachelor—If this work of my hands fails to such, I sympathize with you in your loneliness. Perhaps when you read this you will be passing an evening by yourself in your room. If so think of the girl who is doing the same after tea and day, making things like this smoking case to help to keep herself alive. By the way, don't you think I struck a bright idea when I thought of making it?"

Ned thought she struck a brighter idea when she put this missive in it, though at first he was disposed to consider her doing so a trifle—well, a trifle irregular, but it occurred to him that a girl stupid enough to make a smoking case out of wool and silk, adorned with bowknots, might suppose she could put out such a message without her identity being discovered. However, there is something attractive to men in woman's misconception of man's requirements, and vice versa. At any rate, Ned was very much interested in his find.

He was more than interested. He was sensibly, or, rather, sentimentally, affected by the sympathy of this poor girl, who was like himself yearning for something which nature intended for her, but which she was denied. He lighted his pipe and began puffing clouds of smoke, through which he formed conceptions of her. Was she dark? Was she fair? Was she disposed to be merry? How would she look sitting on the other side of the table doing some bit of needlework, not so late to strangers, but for some one she loved?

This simple picture grew into others, yet all of the same kind. The room became one of a number. There was a faint cry. She arose and went to an adjoining room, from which it had issued. There was a lullaby, which in a few minutes ceased. The dreamer arose and looked into the room where the woman and child were and saw the baby sleeping, the mother bending over it.

Leaving the child, they walked back, hand in hand, and drawing a sofa before the fireplace, sat together and, whispering, laid plans, in which the little sleeper was the central figure. The dream changed. He came home after business to meet her at the door, and she gave him a kiss mechanically, for she was troubled. She told him that their oldest child, now a boy of seven, was ill. The doctor had been called for and would soon be there. Going upstairs, the father put his hand on his child's hot brow and spoke tenderly to the little sufferer. Then he turned away, mutely pressing the mother's hand.

The doctor came, and after an examination a serious look settled on his face. Then followed a night of anxious watching and waiting, while the child tossed and moaned, and every moan cut the parents' hearts like a knife. The doctor came again in the morning and looked graver than yesterday. Before he left he told the man and wife to be prepared for the worst.

In the night a change came. Two alternatives arose before the dream, one that the woman came out of the sickroom with a blighted look on her face, saying, "It's all over." He groaned and shut the vision out by closing his eyes. When he opened them the other alternative was before him. "Ned, there is a change. He is sleeping quietly, and his skin is moist." He went to the sickroom and put his hand on the child's cheek, then turned and, clasping the mother in his arms, said fervently, "Thank God!"

Day dreams as well as those that come in sleep shift quickly. Ned saw himself prosperous, rich. He sat at one end of a dining table, his wife at the other, with children of all ages on either hand. The oldest was now a sturdy collegian, who had carried all the honors of his class; the next, a girl of nineteen, just engaged to one of her brother's classmates, while the others, boys and girls, rattled their knives and forks, making a greater clatter by all talking at once.

"Do you remember, dear," he said, "that smoking case you made of some woven stuff bespattered with bowknots? That was the stupidest thing you ever did in your life. I can't imagine anything more ridiculous. Ha, ha!"

Ned Barnes had gradually been succumbing to the quieting influences of tobacco, and when he spoke these words he was dreaming in slumber. His loud "Ha, ha!" awakened him.

"By Jove," he exclaimed, yawning; "my dream must have been part while awake and part sleeping! I'd like to dream it all over again. No; not that part about the child dying! No, no!"

He shuddered and gave a quick pull at his pipe. But no smoke came. It had gone out. Laying it aside, he arose, undressed and went to bed. But before going to sleep he made a resolution with a view of turning his dream into a reality, and the next day he put it into practice.

"Can you tell me," he said to the manager of the woman's exchange, "who made the smoking case I bought here the other day?"

The woman hesitated, asked why he wished to know, consulted with another woman, then said that the article had been made by a young girl whose necessities were considerable. If giving her address would be of any benefit to her it would be given. Barnes said that it would. He had been so pleased with the article she had made that he would like a dozen of them. To this the lady replied that he could order a dozen through her, but he said in so large an order he would prefer to deal directly with the manufacturer. After much delay he finally got the address.

Ned was tempted to write the girl that he had purchased her smoking case and had received her missive; but, deeming this incautious, he set about finding some one who would give him an introduction to her. He at length succeeded in this and found in the girl he sought one whose family had in former days been prominent, but whose property had melted away. She had never known anything but adversity, though she had inherited from her mother the manner of a lady. She was rather pretty and generally attractive. Barnes, under the influence of the episode of which she was ignorant, took quite a fancy to her. He followed up the acquaintance, and gradually it appeared to him that, though she was stupid on the surface, beneath was a deep current of common sense.

Since she was the only girl he knew with whom he could begin married life on practical principles, he resolved to ask her to marry him. He preceded his proposition by taking from his pocket the missive he had found in the smoking case and handed it to her. She read it and looked up at him with cheeks aflame.

"Where did you get it?" she asked. "I bought the smoking case you sold through the woman's exchange. You ask in the note if I don't think you struck a bright idea in making the smoking case. I certainly do. I reproach all the rest you said and propose to end our mutual loneliness by a union. Will you marry me?"

That was a dozen or fifteen years ago. Mrs. Barnes proved an admirable manager, thus giving her husband a great advantage in making a living as well as laying up a competence. Besides this, as a family man he gained that concentration which he had lacked before his marriage. Thirdly, as soon as he had a wife and children to take care of all his friends were disposed to help him. The consequence is that today the substance of his dream has come to pass—he is prosperous and happy, with a loving family.

The smoking case is treasured in the Barnes family. When the children ask what it is their father facetiously tells them that it is a monument of mamma's genius, but when they ask how it is so and a girl asks the question he tells her that he hopes she will show as much talent for getting a husband as her mother. If one of his sons makes inquiries about it the father simply tells him that it is an evidence of women's understanding of the requirements of men.

His Plan.

"Some of your constituents are disagreeing with you," said the trusted lieutenant. "Well, keep tab on them," replied Senator Sorghum. "When enough disagree with me to constitute a reliable majority, I'm going to turn around and agree with them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ready to Face the Music.

"This office you are applying for will require your constant attention," warned the eminent official. "That's all right. I don't believe I will have to hustle any harder to hold it than I have done to get it."

LESSON IN ARITHMETIC.

IF one fly occupies a cubic quarter of an inch, how many flies make a cubic foot? Two hundred thousand. Then how much space is occupied by the progeny of one successful fly? About 900,000 cubic miles. N. B.—Figures don't lie.

The call for patriotic fly fighters is out. None too weak with age, none too weak with youth, if the patriotism is in him. Now, before matters are worse, is the time for intervention.

to make your home bright and cheerful. Have your old silver replated, your chandeliers refinished, and what a difference it makes. We do all kinds of plating. Have the mirrors of your auto nickel plated and save labor.

BURGLARS STOLE AN EMPTY SAFE

Some time Sunday night or Monday morning the safe of Walter Decker in Rhinebeck was broken open and the burglars carried away a safe weighing 500 pounds. A wheelbarrow was used to transport the safe about a mile away from the village where it was broken open with a bar stolen from Mr. Shultz's carriage house. After all their trouble the burglars were surprised to find the safe was empty. The work was supposed to have been done by three Italians who were hanging about the place Sunday. The case resembles several burglaries which have taken place in Dutchess county the past week. A few days ago a safe in a store in Wappingers Falls was carried away on a wheelbarrow and $700 secured after it was broken. The Kingston police were asked to watch for strange Italians Monday and the passengers on the Rhine-cliff ferry were carefully scrutinized. This morning word was received that Sheriff Hornbeck, in a running fight had shot an Italian through the liver and he was expected to die. It is thought he is one of the burglars.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, April 28.—The Rev. W. H. Moser delivered a very excellent sermon to the members of the I. O. O. F., Lodge at the M. E. Church Sunday evening which was well received. The large choir with Organist Campbell rendered a very fine anthem. There was a large congregation present and the service all through was much enjoyed.

On Sunday evening, May 3, Dr. Moser will conduct another of his popular sermons in song. The subject will be "Buy Your Own Chances." The choir and congregation with the stereopticon will assist in the service.

Mrs. P. H. Decker of Brooklyn is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. C. Wood, on Center street.

Miss Flavia B. Coons is the guest of her brother, H. W. Coons and family, on Center street.

Mrs. D. B. Lyon is spending several days with Dr. and Mrs. Smith at Hackensack.

Miss Alice Wyncoop, who is to graduate in September from a hospital in Pittsfield, Mass., after a three years course, is spending a ten days vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wyncoop, on Center street.

Mr. and Mrs. U. E. Terwilliger and Bert H. Terwilliger and family are to go this week to Mt. Meenahga to put the hotel in readiness for the summer boarding season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Divine spent several days in New York the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Divine are to occupy their new home early in May.

The members of the Dorcas Society are invited to meet with Mrs. Akon Reynolds at her home on Canal street Wednesday afternoon. A full attendance of members is requested.

Delighted Throng at Williams's.

At the thirteenth anniversary of Williams's millinery Monday evening the large rooms were filled with ladies who admired the beautiful display of hats, and much enthusiasm was shown. Miss Gladys Amoad gave a greeting, a recitation in a very charming manner. Mrs. Williams gave an original and clever description of a lady in quest of a hat all around town which was much appreciated. Miss Lottie Freer was wearing a handsome hat, Mrs. F. F. Wanzart and Miss Helen Freer were given the consolation hats. These two hats caused much merriment and were by the entirely new and original arrangement of the trimming, "the latest Paris style."

Struck by U. & D. Train.

Mrs. Rebecca K. White, of New York, a widow 45 years old, manager of a summer hotel near Hobart, was struck by an Ulster & Delaware coal train at a street crossing in South Kortright on Monday and died from her injuries.—New York Times.

"Breakfast" Comparatively New.

Few people realize that the meal breakfast did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century. The earliest period to which the word can be traced is 1463. In the days of the Tudors the higher classes and merchants seldom took their meals before twelve and six o'clock.

Hoosier Cabinets Last a Lifetime!

Hoosier
"White Beauty"

ONLY $1 puts this
NEW HOOSIER in your home on the famous Hoosier Plan.

You may choose between the celebrated "White Beauty," whose picture is shown here, and one of the other Hoosiers, finished inside in oak.

The terms of the Hoosier Plan are these:

1. $1 puts the cabinet you choose in your home.
2. $1 weekly quickly pays for it.
3. The Low Cash Price fixed by the factory prevails strictly.
4. No interest. No extra fees.
5. This sale is under direct supervision of the Hoosier Company.
6. Your money back if you are not delighted with your Hoosier.

Only those women who grasp this opportunity tomorrow can be sure of getting one of these cabinets on this liberal Hoosier Plan. You realize of course that these terms could not be offered except on a very limited number of cabinets. After this sale—

1. The "Hoosier Plan" terms will be withdrawn.
2. Our regular furniture terms will then prevail.

THE IMMEDIATE CLOSING of this sale may be caused tomorrow by the number of women who enroll on this Hoosier Plan. If all the women who need Hoosiers should come tomorrow, our allotment would be taken before night and the sale would close. This has happened in many similar sales throughout the country. On the other hand, if women delay, the sale may last all week. This too has happened. Which now is best for you—to delay and take the chances of missing this opportunity or to come down tomorrow and find out about this cabinet so you can decide before it is too late?

It cannot take you ten minutes to decide, once for all, whether you intend to purchase now or later—And you are deciding, remember, whether or not you will save miles of unnecessary steps you now take.

But unless you at once decide, you may decide too late to own this greatest of all Hoosier cabinets on this liberal Hoosier Plan. 700,000 women already have Hoosiers. Thousands are buying this New Hoosier every week. You should without fail grasp your opportunity and see this cabinet tomorrow.

Read About these conveniences
that have made the HOOSIER
necessary to over 700,000 Women

(1) Mrs. Christine Frederick's famous "Housekeepers' Food Guide"—on the upper left door—answers every woman's eternally perplexing problem—"What shall we have for dinner?" You turn the dial to the meat you want and a complete outline of a perfectly balanced meal is before you—an exclusive Hoosier feature that is an invaluable help.

(2) The Cook-book Holder on the middle upper door holds your cook book securely when not in use. When you are cooking, simply open up the book to the proper page behind the holder. It is on a level with your eye, always clean, never in the way.

There are 40 special conveniences in the NEW HOOSIER—17 are entirely NEW.

(3) The Hoosier Metal Flour Bin holds fifty pounds. It is low and easy to fill. The sliding glass front enables you to clean the entire bin easily. The inside is entirely of metal with no corners to hold flour. First flour in is always out first.

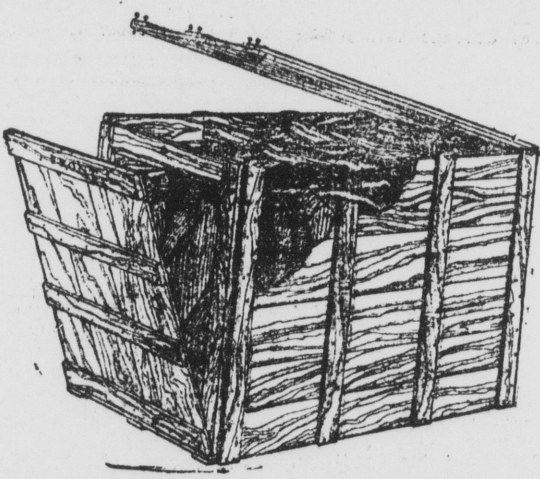

(4) The New Shaker Flour Sifter is the most wonderful of all the New Hoosier inventions. It is the only flour sifter ever made on a kitchen cabinet that shakes flour through instead of grinding it through. It cannot wear out and cannot grind through any grit or foreign substance that might be in the flour.

Twenty of these features are described in OUR WINDOW DISPLAY which will be the talk of the town next week—come in and find out about the others.

(5) A Big, Extra Roomy Drawer in the base is made entirely of metal for the proper storage of all kitchen linen, towels, dish cloths, etc. The drawer is noiseless, rustless, and easy to keep clean.

(6) A new feature in the Base Cupboard is a narrow shelf conveniently located for the storage of canned articles. Most women will find this a great convenience as an "emergency shelf." It will save many trips to the cellar or pantry.

TOMORROW YOU may examine all the new features. You incur no obligation. But you should come early so you can study them all carefully. Our stock of White Beauty patterns is limited. You may be too late to get one on the HOOSIER PLAN if you delay. Come and SEE this remarkable NEW Hoosier tomorrow.

Hanging All The Way!

You keep YOUR clothes on hangers. So does every progressive clothing store. But, before that—

Suppose your coat lay in a great pile for a couple of months. Then suppose it was squeezed like sardines into a packing box. By the time it reaches this city isn't it pretty late to introduce it to a hanger?

The moment HICKEY-FREEMAN QUALITY clothes for men are completed they are put on hangers. And they are kept on hangers. They are even sent suspended on hangers in a patented hanger shipping case. From this case we transfer them to our own hanger cabinets.

Hickey-Freeman-Quality garments have never been wrinkled, crushed or maltreated in any way. They never develop those deep wrinkles that severe pressing only temporarily hides. Their matchless tailoring comes to you in perfect condition.

TROOPS ORDERED TO COLORADO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 28.—After conferences which lasted nearly all day, President Wilson this afternoon decided to send government troops into Colorado to handle the strike situation at Trinidad. Secretary of War Garrison was instructed to order troops from the most available army posts to the seat of the labor troubles. It is probable that the troops will get under way tonight. It is probable that the forces from Fort Robinson, Neb., and Fort Riley, Kas., will be sent to Colorado, as there are not enough soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., to handle the situation.

The question as to whether the president had the legal right to send government soldiers into a state when the legislature of that state had not requested this action was the stumbling block which delayed official action at the White House. Precedents were cited and statutes quoted which finally convinced the president and his advisers that he would not be exceeding his powers in sending troops into Colorado.

Six companies of troops will be sent to Colorado immediately.

SHE FINISHED THE STORY.

Gladstone Couldn't Whistle, but His Wife Could and Did.

Apparently the powers of Mr. Gladstone as a whistler were somewhat limited, judging by the amusing story told by the Rev. T. Selby Henney in "Attic Salt." Mr. Gladstone and Dean Wellesley were schoolfellows at Eton, and the friendship there commenced continued throughout life. When they were both in the stables they met at a little dinner party at the deanery at Windsor, and the great statesman jocularly said across the table to the dean:

"I say, old friend, I have got a good story for you about Harry Philpotts, bishop of Exeter."

Upon which Mrs. Gladstone hastily interferred:

"William, you must not tell that story until the servants have left the room."

When the psychological moment arrived Mr. Gladstone said:

"You know, Wellesley, that Bishop Philpotts during his old age acquired the habit of sitting up late at night, with his chaplain. Well, one night he was comfortably ensconced in his study chair, with feet against the mantelpiece, dreamily looking into the fire, when he heard footsteps at the door and the noise of a dress behind him."

"Without looking up he said in a very endearing voice, thinking the intruder to be his wife, 'What can I do for you, my little darling?' To his great astonishment the trespasser proved to be not his wife, but his wife's maid. And the only way in which the poor bishop could give expression to his feelings was by a long drawn out, subdued whistle."

Mr. Gladstone at this juncture said, "I cannot manage the whistle, so I will ask Catherine to give it." and Mrs. Gladstone finished the story by giving the long drawn out whistle, to the delight not only of the dean, but also of all the guests.

CLEAR AIR OF MEXICO.

Seeing From the Top of the Sierras to Mount Sparta.

The distance at which dashes from the heliograph and other objects can be discerned by the eye depends on two things, the height and the clearness of the air.

In Mexico the air is said to be clearer than anywhere else in the world. At any rate, it is the only country where a view extending to 200 miles can be obtained. By climbing to the top of the Sierra maintains the lonely peak of Mount Sparta can be seen. It would take four hours by express train to reach it.

Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, is the tallest mountain in the world. From Darjeeling the gigantic cone of Everest is seen rising in snowy grandeur among its mighty neighbors, and any stranger would vow that it was not more than thirty or forty miles away. As a matter of fact, the distance is 107 miles as the crow flies.

The most conspicuous object in the British Isles is Mount Snowdon, in Wales, which on a clear day can be distinctly seen from Bray head, County Wicklow, a distance of no less than eighty-five miles. Snowdon can also be seen from Waterloo, Liverpool, a distance of fifty two miles.

In the fens, where the ground is perfectly flat for miles, any lofty object can be seen a long way off. Boston Stump, the tower of the fine old church at Boston, Lincolnshire, is visible from the Leicestershire hills, quite forty miles away.

From the top of the famous Blackpool tower you can on a clear day catch a glimpse of the mountain of Snæfell, in the Isle of Man. The distance is a good sixty miles.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Turkish, Yet Greek.

One of the most characteristic things about Constantinople is that while it has become Turkish it has not ceased to be Greek. The same is true of Thrace, Macedonia, and Asia Minor, which contain a large Turkish population, but which still form a part of the Greek world to which they always belonged. The two races have indisputably influenced each other, as their languages and certain of their customs prove. A good deal of Greek blood now flows, too, in Turkish veins. Nevertheless there has been remarkably little assimilation after 500 years of one element by the other. They co-exist, each perfectly distinct and each claiming with perfect reason the land as his own.—Scribner's.

He Was Posted.

A distinguished painter employed a small boy from a neighboring slum as a model. He gave the child some tea and asked him if he would like brown bread or white, expecting, as is usual with such youngsters, that he would ask for white. The boy, however, asked for brown bread.

"Hello," exclaimed the painter, astonished; "do you like brown bread?"

"Yes," replied the boy; "it's got more nitrogen in it."—Manchester Guardian

Cat's Perilous Voyage.

When the steamer M. Martin arrived in the Rondout creek this morning people on the dock were attracted by a large Maltese cat which was sitting serenely on the rudder chain, having evidently made the journey from Newburgh in that perilous position. When the rudder moved the cat ran from one end of the chain to another and seemed very much frightened. Employees on the steamer Mary Powell, who were rowing across the creek, rescued the feline, which dashed madly up the dock, probably being headed for Newburgh.

Minstrel Show a Success.

Everybody who packed St. Joseph's spacious hall Monday night to witness the minstrel and vaudeville entertainment, by parish talent, says that the entertainment was the very best amateur performance ever seen in Kingston. From the first to the last curtain, the audience was kept merry. Every actor did his best to please, and succeeded admirably. The stage settings were beautiful. The end men were alive every minute; the chorus glorious; the soloists superb. Again tonight at 8 o'clock the performance will begin. Doors open at 7 o'clock.

Turn and Turn About.

It was sometimes the custom of professors in former times to give free tickets for their courses—a kindness that was sometimes abused. In "The Book of Edinburgh Anecdotes" Francis Watt tells how the famous Dr. John Barclay, extramural lecturer on anatomy at the University of Edinburgh between 1797 and 1825, once applied a humorous corrective to an imposition of this kind.

He received a note from Dr. Laing, the well known antiquary, requesting a free ticket for a young medical student. Barclay professed himself delighted to confer the favor, but invited the pupil to accompany him to Dr. Laing's bookshop, where he selected books on anatomy to the exact value of a ticket for his course of lectures. Then, sagely remarking that without textbooks his lectures were useless, he presented the books to the astonished youth as a gift from Dr. Laing. He would not listen to the young man's expostulation, but bundled him and the books out of the shop. He did not find it necessary to repeat the lesson.

Our Poisonous Snakes.

Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York zoological park, classified the poisonous snakes of the United States in seventeen species. Of these, the common coral snake and the Sonoran coral snake inhabit the southeastern and southwestern states respectively; the copperhead and the water moccasin are in the east and southeast; the dwarf rattlesnakes—that is, the massasauga and the pygmy—infest the central and southeastern regions, and the eleven typical rattlesnakes live in the east, the southeast, the prairie region and the great southwest. Of these, the southwest, indeed, holds six—the white, the tiger, the black tailed, Price's, the green and the horned. The other five are the timber rattlesnake, the diamond back of the southeast, the prairie, the Pacific and the Texas.—Youth's Companion.

DUBUC AND CICOTTE EXCEL AS FIELDERS

Jean Dubuc of Detroit.

Because a man possesses French blood does it necessarily mean that he should be a good fielding pitcher?

A glance at the American league percentages of 1913 would indicate truth in the foregoing statement.

Jean Dubuc, with Detroit, and Eddie Cicotte, Detroit boy with Chicago, could become charter or honorary members of any Champlain, Mont.

It is possible the peculiar delivery of each man has something to do with the fielding. Cicotte throws a knuckle ball and a splitter, while Dubuc places much dependence on a slow ball. It is difficult for batters to meet balls that are pitched squarely on the ends of their clubs and, falling to do this, the chances are they will knock rolling grounders to the infielders.

Dubuc, like Cicotte, uses his peculiar form of delivery in the pitches. Cicotte seldom resorts to a splitter or a knuckle ball when there are no strikes on the batter, but often when the count is two to one against the man at the plate Cicotte will float across the knuckle ball while Dubuc will "cross" the batter with a slow one. Or, if thinking the opposing player is waiting for a slow one, Dubuc will ship a fast pitch across either corner.

Frank Baker, the famous home-run hitter of the Athletics, has never had much success against Dubuc or Cicotte. These pitchers work to out-guess Baker, and instead of slipping a fast one over and trusting to the fielders, Dubuc and Cicotte come through with slow balls and curves. Neither takes chances on having the slugger hammer a fast one, and if other pitchers in the American circuit would follow suit Baker's employers would have fewer broken windows to pay for.

Dubuc and Cicotte claim that fielding came natural to them. While they worked to perfection, these never was a time when they could not be depended upon to take care of their position and to cover first or back up plays when the situation demanded.

MOVE TO ORGANIZE A HOME

Owners of Minneapolis Baseball Club Favor Institution for Benefit of Needy Players.

Headed by Mike and Joe Cantillon, owners of the Minneapolis baseball club, players there have started a move to organize a national home for needy professional baseball players.

The Cantillons offer to donate $1,000 in cash as a starter. The plan is to assess each professional baseball player five dollars a year, and as there are 7,000 men playing professional ball in America this would aggregate $35,000 annually. To become a member of the home a player must serve one year as a professional under contract, and must contribute the amount agreed upon.

The home not only would be open to the player, but also to his wife and children. All players will be placed upon their honor to not accept the hospitality of the home until in need of assistance.

Faculty Must Dig.

Hereafter faculty members and administrative officers of the University of Wisconsin will have to pay admission to witness university football, baseball and basketball games and track events, as the result of a ruling made by the athletic council. Only team managers, players, newspaper men and wearers of the varsity "W" will be admitted free.

Eastern Michigan League.

The Border league, a class D circuit including towns in Eastern Michigan and Northwestern Ontario, has changed its name to the Eastern Michigan league. It will be an eight-club circuit this year, the new towns being Ann Arbor and Mount Clemens, added to Wyandotte, Windsor, Port Huron, Ypsilanti, Pontiac and Sarnia.

TROOPS ORDERED TO COLORADO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 28.—After conferences which lasted nearly all day, President Wilson this afternoon decided to send government troops into Colorado to handle the strike situation at Trinidad. Secretary of War Garrison was instructed to order troops from the most available army posts to the seat of the labor troubles. It is probable that the troops will get under way tonight. It is probable that the forces from Fort Robinson, Neb., and Fort Riley, Kas., will be sent to Colorado as there are not enough soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., to handle the situation.

The question as to whether the president had the legal right to send government soldiers into a state when the legislature of that state had not requested this action was the stumbling block which delayed official action at the White House. Precedents were cited and statutes quoted which finally convinced the president and his advisers that he would not be exceeding his powers in sending troops into Colorado.

Six companies of troops will be sent to Colorado immediately.

SHE FINISHED THE STORY.

Gladstone Couldn't Whistle, but His Wife Could and Did.

Apparently the powers of Mr. Gladstone as a whistler were somewhat limited, judging by the amusing story told by the Rev. T. Selby Henry in "Little Sales." Mr. Gladstone and Dean Wellesley were schoolfellows at Eton, and the friendship there commenced continued throughout life. When they were both in the stables they met at a little dinner party at the deanery at Windsor, and the great statesman facetiously said across the table to the dean:

"I say, old friend, I have got a good story for you about Harry Philipps, bishop of Exeter."

Upon which Mrs. Gladstone hastily interferred:

"William, you must not tell that story until the servants have left the room."

When the psychological moment arrived Mr. Gladstone said:

"You know, Wellesley, that Bishop Philipps during his old age acquired the habit of sitting up late at night, with his chaplain. Well, one night he was comfortably ensconced in his study chair, with feet against the mantelpiece, dreamily looking into the fire, when he heard footsteps at the door and the noise of a dress behind him."

"Without looking up he said in a very endearing voice, thinking the intruder to be his wife, 'What can I do for you, my little darling?' To his great astonishment the trespasser proved to be not his wife, but his wife's maid. And the only way in which the poor bishop could give expression to his feelings was by a long drawn out, subdued whistle."

Mr. Gladstone at this juncture said, "I cannot manage the whistle, so I will ask Catherine to give it," and Mrs. Gladstone finished the story by giving the long drawn out whistle, to the delight not only of the dean, but also of all the guests.

CLEAR AIR OF MEXICO.

Seeing From the Top of the Sierras to Mount Sparta.

The distance at which dashes from the helicopter and other objects can be discerned by the eye depends on two things, the height and the clearness of the air.

In Mexico the air is said to be clearer than anywhere else in the world. At any rate, it is the only country where a view extending to 200 miles can be obtained. By climbing to the top of the Sierra mountains the lonely peak of Mount Sparta can be seen. It would take four hours by express train to reach it.

Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, is the tallest mountain in the world. From Darjeeling the gigantic cone of Everest is seen rising in snowy grandeur among its mighty neighbors, and any stranger would vow that it was not more than thirty or forty miles away. As a matter of fact, the distance is 107 miles as the crow flies.

The most conspicuous object in the British Isles is Mount Snowdon, in Wales, which on a clear day can be distinctly seen from Bray head, County Wicklow, a distance of no less than eighty-five miles. Snowdon can also be seen from Waterloo, Liverpool, a distance of fifty-two miles.

In the fens, where the ground is perfectly flat for miles, any lofty object can be seen a long way off. Boston Stump, the tower of the fine old church at Boston, Lincolnshire, is visible from the Leicestershire hills, quite forty miles away.

From the top of the famous Blackpool tower you can on a clear day catch a glimpse of the mountain of Snowdon, in the Isle of Man. The distance is a good sixty miles.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Turkish, Yet Greek.

One of the most characteristic things about Constantinople is that while it has become Turkish it has not ceased to be Greek. The same is true of Thrace, Macedonia, and Asia Minor, which contain a large Turkish population, but which still form a part of the Greek world to which they always belonged. The two races have indisputably influenced each other, as their languages and certain of their customs prove. A good deal of Greek blood now flows, too, in Turkish veins. Nevertheless, there has been remarkably little assimilation after 500 years of one element by the other. They co-exist, each perfectly distinct and each claiming with perfect reason the land as his own.—Scribner's.

W. I. Addis of the L. B. Van Wageningen Company has purchased a Paige Detroit automobile from M. H. Snyder of the Ulster Garage.

Automobile trucks are being used by George T. Kelly of Yonkers, contractor on the new high school, in transporting brick from Poughkeepsie to this city.

Leslie Munson, formerly chauffeur for Van Etten & Hogan Trucking Co., has assumed his position as private chauffeur for Mrs. Fuller of Albany avenue. Mr. Munson will leave in a few days for New York to get a new Winton six auto recently purchased by Mrs. Fuller.

The A. R. King Manufacturing Company of Kingston, who have been building the King trucks for two years and marketing their output locally, decided early in the year to enter the New York field. They have established offices at No. 50 Church street. William C. Hunter, formerly of the Alco staff, is in charge of the business as New York sales manager. He is exhibiting and demonstrating a heavy duty 3 1/2 ton capacity truck of the short wheel base type with motor under the footboards. This company expects to build and market about 150 trucks of this type this year, and during the summer will bring out a 1 1/2 ton worm drive truck for lighter duty.

ALLABEN.

Allaben, April 28.—Uriah Guinick expects to move from Big Indian to Allaben this week to work for George E. Yerry, contractor and builder.

Joseph J. Yerry is home from Spencer's Business College where he has been taking a course in book-keeping and typewriting.

George E. Yerry, contractor and builder, is a very busy man these days, he is giving employment to twenty-three men. He has the frame up for G. Frank Van Kenna's new house at Allaben. He also has a large contract for C. H. Carter in Peck Hollow, also for Miss Dyett in Woodland, where he is making extensive improvement to her home. He has a gang of men working at Edward B. Miller's Roxmor colony.

The chair factory here isn't doing very much at the present time.

Evan Haynes made a visit to Kingston on business Monday. He is doing quite a business in his store at Allaben.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 28.—The optimistic outlook in the Mexican situation, in view of the possibility of mediation by Argentina, Brazil and Chile, was again the most influential factor at the opening of the stock market today. Most of the important issues began higher but some shaded their best price before trading was half an hour old. U. S. Steel common began 1/4 higher, but lost half of this advance within a few minutes. Amalgamated Copper commenced at 71 1/4 for a gain of 1/4, but at the end of 20 minutes was selling at 70 3/4. Canadian Pacific was one of the strongest issues in the initial trading, advancing 2 points to 189 1/4. Soon, however, nearly half of this advance had been carried away. Much interest centered upon Mexican Petroleum, because of the wild fluctuations of this stock yesterday. Mexican petroleum commenced 1 1/4 higher at 53 1/4, but subsequently went to 52 1/4. American Smelting and Refining opened at 60 1/4 for a gain of 1/4. Among the other early advances were the following: Union Pacific, 3/4; Reading, 3/4; Southern Railway, 1/2; Great Northern preferred, 1/4; Erie, 1/4 and Lehigh Valley, 1/4. Northern Pacific, Nevada Consolidated Copper and Ray Consolidated Copper were fractionally off. Studebaker was one of the most prominent of the specialties, opening at 20 1/4 for a gain of 2, then advancing to 31. The curb was strong. Americans in London were quiet over New York. After a jump Mexicans on the London stock market worked below their high point.

Noon.—All through the late forenoon an irregular tendency prevailed with the majority of stocks holding firm. Missouri Pacific however, was weak, declining 2 1/4 to 16 3/4. Canadian Pacific, moved up 1/4; Reading, advanced 1/4; U. S. Steel common, 1/2; Southern Pacific and Lehigh Valley gained 1/4. Amalgamated Copper declined, 1/4. Call money loaning at 1 1/4.

2:30 p. m.—Prices of stocks were cried upward on fair demand in the last hour and an absence of selling of securities helped the rise. Union Pacific sold around 153 for a net advance of 1 1/4 on the day. Amalgamated Copper sold at 72 against 71 1/4 at the opening. New York, New Haven and Hartford sold at 69 for a net gain of 1 1/4 on the day. Missouri Pacific sold under its morning opening but gained fractionally over its midday level. Erie also gained.

The New York market closed steady, governments unchanged, other bonds steady.

Quotations furnished by John D. Kling, Broadway and Strand, Kingston, N. Y., Tel. 93. Correspondent of C. H. Van Buren & Company, member of Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Samuel Carson, Jr., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his father, Samuel Carson, 82 Hoffman street, with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

The funeral of Gilbert Longyear, who died on Saturday, was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. P. Snyder, 116 Elmendorf street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Court Santa Maria, No. 164, Daughters of Isabella, is completing arrangements for an entertainment and informal dance to be given in St. Mary's Hall on Wednesday evening, May 6. Tickets are for sale by the members.

The funeral of George Henry Haley, who died on Saturday, was held this morning at 8 o'clock from his late residence, 55 Cedar street, and from St. Joseph's Church at 9 o'clock. The interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Catherine, wife of Charles D. Kniffin, died on Friday at her home in Wurtsboro, aged 68 years. She was a daughter of Wesley Coddington and Phoebe J. Peck, who were among the early settlers of Cragmoor. Two sons, Frank W. and Robert B. Kniffin of Newburgh, and three daughters, Mrs. Edward Washburn of Wurtsboro, Mrs. A. Kingberg of Cragmoor and Bertha at home, survive.

Mrs. Mary A. Moffit, widow of Rufus Moffit and mother of Lawyer Van R. Moffit of Ellenville, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Frear, of Fairview avenue, Middletown, Monday morning of acute indigestion at the age of 78 years. Mr. and Mrs. Moffit were for many years well known citizens of Centerville Station where Mr. Moffit died several years ago. The funeral of Mrs. Moffit will be held at the home of her son, Wilson B. Moffit, at Wurtsboro on Wednesday and the burial will be made in family plot, in cemetery at Rock Hill.

Judge Augustus Goeller died at his home in the village of Athens last Saturday morning, aged about seventy years. The funeral services were held from his late residence this afternoon at two o'clock. Judge Goeller was born in Kingston and during his young manhood he worked for one of the newspapers of this city. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in one of the Kingston volunteer companies and served with distinction. He moved to Athens in the early seventies, and was married to the widow of John Van Loan, who survives him. There are no children. With the exception of one term Mr. Goeller had been justice of the peace for the village of Athens since the year 1885, and for many years prior to his death he had been police justice. He was a Democrat of the old school, a man of many splendid characteristics and was generally esteemed and admired by all who came in contact with him. For many years he had been connected with the Knights of Pythias, and was a past chancellor of the Athens lodge. He was secretary of the Mount Hope Cemetery Association. Deceased, in his younger days was a fine musician and was organizer of a band in Athens which for many years enjoyed a splendid reputation along the river.

Deckhand Badly Injured.

A Polish deckhand on the steamer M. Martin was nearly killed this morning when trucking at Poughkeepsie. An iron casting weighing 900 pounds fell from a truck and crushed in his breast. He was still alive when the boat left Poughkeepsie for this city and was taken to a hospital.

The Albany Sails.

The steamer Albany went to New York this morning and will be hauled out on dry dock at Hoboken for painting. The Washington Irving is expected to arrive at the Sunflower dock this evening.

Weiss Is a Sailor.

Paul Weiss, son of Charles Weiss of West Pierpont street, is stationed on the Cincinnati, which is now in Mexican waters with the American fleet.

Greek Meets Greek.

A careful mother whose baby had fallen asleep in his carriage in the park found in seeking to make him comfortable that the sun was shining from one direction and a cold wind blowing from another. After careful consideration and numerous turnings she decided to risk his tightly closed eyes to a little sunshine rather than to expose him to the chilly breeze.

As she seated herself a stern voice spoke. "I don't know who your mistress is," it said, "but I shall make it my business to find out and report you to her. The idea of your risking this baby's eyes in that sunshine! I am a doctor's wife."

Several times did the careful mother attempt vainly to interrupt and explain. Then "I am grateful for your interest, madam," she said, "and I happen to be this child's mother. Also I, too, am a doctor's wife and a nurse as well."

As the stern voice moved on she turned to another careful mother on the bench. "I know this coat was old," she said, "but do I look as bad as that?"—New York Post.

SOCIETY NOTES.

This evening the Hummel violin recital will occur at the First Presbyterian Church at 8:15 o'clock, and will be a real treat to all music lovers.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Barbara Gwynn and Adelbert Chambers will take place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride on Linderman avenue.

Master Charles McCarthy entertained a score of his young friends at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. F. C. Snyder, on Ferry street Monday evening in honor of his tenth birthday. There were piano and violin selections by Miss Mamie Snyder and Vincent Van Bramer, and vocal solos by Samuel Weisman and Charles McCarthy, besides numbers on the Victrola. Games and refreshments were served and the young folks left about 10 o'clock well pleased with their entertainment.

The Brooklyn Eagle Says: Miss Anne Arundel Driscoll, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Henry Driscoll, of 243 Greene avenue, has broken off her engagement to Clarence Hiltbrand of Kingston and Brooklyn. According to Mrs. Driscoll, who made the announcement, the engagement was broken as the result of a "serious difference between the two young people, which cannot be mended."

Monday Club.

The Monday Club held its last meeting of the season this week at the home of Mrs. A. V. V. Kenyon. The election of officers resulted in a unanimous re-election of officers as follows: President, Mrs. DeWitt Roosa; Vice-president, Mrs. Charles De La Vergne; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Everett Fowler. Subjects for papers for the ensuing year, on the topic, "Africa," with one day a month for American Music, were chosen. The club voted to give $6 to the Kingston City Library. This the club has done for several years, using our own library books for reference instead of being to the expense of sending to Albany for books. Arrangements were also completed for the club's entertaining the Federation of Women's Clubs at the last general meeting which will occur on Saturday afternoon, May 16, in the chapel of the First Dutch Church. The club has secured the Rev. Percy S. Grant of New York city, noted Episcopal clergyman, writer lecturer and traveler as the speaker of the occasion. This man of note will speak on "Poetry." An interesting letter was read from Mrs. Jessie C. Preston, who wrote from Florence, Italy, where she and Miss Ingraham spent Easter. Her description of the day, which is to the Italians what Christmas is to the Germans, was exceedingly interesting, as was her description of visits to smaller nearby places where customs of observing the day were found to be centuries old and very quaint. The entire month of April was expected to be spent in Florence by the Kingstons. The meetings of the club will now be discontinued until fall.

Instead of Assembly Dance.

It has been arranged between the young ladies, members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club, co-operating with the Assembly Dance committee, that the dance which is to follow the play, "The Elopement of Ellen," to be given at St. Joseph's Hall on Friday evening of this week, shall take the place of the customary Easter assembly dance. There will also be a buffet supper served during the evening, after the play and the price of tickets will cover the admission to the play, the dance and the supper, as has been the custom on former occasions when the club have given the tea dances.

"The Elopement of Ellen," a farce, with the accompanying dance is given for the benefit of further maintaining and supporting the Day Nursery at the federation house, a philanthropy which has already more than proved its right to existence and the interest and support of the public. The farce which will begin at 8:15 o'clock, has the following cast of characters:

Richard Ford, a devoted husband—Thomas A. Horton.

Mollie, Mr. Ford's wife—Miss Dorothy Chipp.

Robert Shepard, Mollie's brother—Robert H. Longman.

Max Ten Eyck, a chum of Robert's—Frederick S. Benedict.

Dorothy March, engaged to Max and a guest in Mrs. Ford's home—Miss Dorothy Schoonmaker.

June Haverhill, Wellesley 1915, doing special work in economics during the summer—Miss Sarah Horton.

John Hume, Rector of St. Agnes Church—Christopher S. Snyder.

It is estimated that this aggregation of brilliant local players will so present this play that all who see it will be filled with a yearning to soon witness another exhibition of the skill of these clever actors. As a souvenir of the occasion programs with a special design by a member of the club will be on sale for a small sum of money. Members of the club will act as ushers.

The play will be immediately followed by the dance music being furnished by an orchestra of three pieces from the Kingston Symphony Society, Malmesfelder, conducting.

And it might well be stated that the younger musicians of today, such as make up this group are most expert in playing the music of the modern dances, with their unusual swing and rhythm.

Tickets for the evening's entertainment may be purchased from any of the following ladies members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club: The Misses Frances Preston, Sarah Horton, Dorothy Chipp, Eleanor Chipp, Doris Hasbrouck, Jeanette Sanford, Jane Van Etten, Kate Van Etten, Dorothy Schoonmaker, Margaret Loughran, Marjorie Drake, Mrs. G. Wallace Codwise and Mrs. William Warren; at the door, and at

On Friday evening, April 24, the members and friends of the Methodist Church tendered a reception to their new pastor, Rev. G. D. Fisher, and family. The gathering was held in the church parlors, which had been carefully prepared for the occasion. There was a large number of friends present who greeted the pastor and family warmly and gave expression of their good wishes. A choice collection of potted plants added beauty to the occasion. During the evening an orchestra of five pieces discoursed sweet music and last but not least delicious refreshments were served. The occasion was one long to be remembered. Mr. Fisher was formerly pastor of the Ashokan and West Hurley charge, and has many friends in this vicinity.

Derrenbacher-Alliger.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Katharine Alliger of 124 Downs street and Edward Derrenbacher of Broadway, which took place at Claverack Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Derrenbacher are enjoying a honeymoon trip to Ogdensburg and Canadian points.

Man's Possibilities.

Man is the crowning work of God on earth; but, though so nobly endowed, we must not forget that we are the lofty children of a race whose lowest forms lie prostrate within the water, having no higher aspiration than the desire for food. And we cannot understand the possible degradation and moral wretchedness of man without knowing that his physical nature is rooted in all the material characteristics that belong to his type and link him even with the fish. The moral and intellectual gifts that distinguish him from them are his to use or abuse. He may, if he will, abjure his better nature and be vertebrate more than man. He may sink as low as the lowest of his type, or he may rise to a spiritual height that will make that which distinguishes him from the rest far more the controlling element of his being than that which unites him with them.—Agassiz.

Valor.

Blowhard sat discoursing upon valor to his ragged cronies. "I," he blew, "fear no man who lives." "But thou fearest me," rasped a midget vixen. "Home with thee!" Blue gilled, he followed his wife, the crowd loud jeering. Within she turned to those who soon filled the doorway. "Mark ye," she blew, "that it is I who fear no man!" "But thou fearest me," sque

ABOUT THE POLICE

Miss Lavina Yeast of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with her parents on Spring street.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Faulkner of West Chestnut street are spending a few days in New York city.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

W. I. Addis of the L. B. Van Wageningen Company has purchased a Paige Detroit automobile from M. H. Snyder of the Ulster Garage.

Automobile trucks are being used by George T. Kelly of Yonkers, contractor on the new high school, in transporting brick from Poughkeepsie to this city.

Leslie Munson, formerly chauffeur for Van Etten & Hogan Trucking Co., has assumed his position as private chauffeur for Mrs. Fuller of Albany. Mr. Munson will leave in a few days for New York to get a Winton six auto recently purchased by Mrs. Fuller.

The A. R. King Manufacturing Company of Kingston, who have been building the King trucks for two years and marketing their output locally, decided early in the year to enter the New York field. They have established offices at No. 50 Church street. William C. Hunter, formerly of the Alco staff, is in charge of the business as New York sales manager. He is exhibiting and demonstrating a heavy duty 3 1/2 ton capacity truck of the short wheel base type with motor under the footboards. This company expects to build and market about 150 trucks of this type this year, and during the summer will bring out a 1 1/2 ton worm drive truck for lighter duty.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman

New York, April 28.—The optimistic outlook in the Mexican situation, in view of the possibility of mediation by Argentina, Brazil and Chile, was again the most influential factor at the opening of the stock market today. Most of the important issues began higher but some shaded their best price before trading was half an hour old. U. S. Steel common began 1/2 higher, but lost half of this advance within a few minutes. Amalgamated Copper commenced at 7 1/4 for a gain of 1/4, but at the end of 20 minutes was selling at 7 1/4. Canadian Pacific was one of the strongest issues in the initial trading, advancing 2 points to 189 1/4. Soon, however, nearly half of this advance had been carried away. Much interest centered upon Mexican Petroleum, because of the wild fluctuations of this stock yesterday. Mexican petroleum commenced 1 1/4 higher at 53 1/4, but subsequently went to 52 1/4. American Smelting and Refining opened at 60 1/4 for a gain of 1 1/4. American early advances were the following: Union Pacific, 1/4; Reading, 3/4; Southern Pacific, 1/4; Great Northern preferred, 1/4; Erie, 1/4 and Lehigh Valley, 1/4. Northern Pacific, Nevada Consolidated Copper and Ray Consolidated Copper were fractionally off. Studebaker was one of the most prominent of the specialties, opening at 20 1/4 for a gain of 2, then advancing to 31. The curb was strong. Americans in London were quiet over New York. After a jump market worked below their high point.

Noon.—All through the late forenoon an irregular tendency prevailed with the majority of stocks holding firm. Missouri Pacific however, was weak, declining 3/4 to 16 1/4. Canadian Pacific, moved up 1/4; Reading, advanced 1/4; U. S. Steel Common, 3/4; Southern Pacific and Lehigh Valley gained 1/4. Amalgamated Copper declined 1/4. Call money loaning at 1 1/4.

2:30 p. m.—Prices of stocks were carried upward on fair demand in the last hour and an absence of selling pressure helped the rise. Union Pacific sold around 153 for a net advance of 1 1/4 on the day. Amalgamated Copper sold at 72 against 71 1/4 at the opening. New York, New Haven and Hartford sold at 49 for a net gain of 1 1/4 on the day. Missouri Pacific sold under its morning opening but gained fractionally over its midday level. Erie also gained.

The New York market closed steady, governments unchanged, other bonds steady.

LOCAL DEATHS RECORDED

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Samuel Carson, Jr., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his father, Samuel Carson, 82 Hoffman street, with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

The funeral of Gilbert Longyear, who died on Saturday, was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. P. Snyder, 116 Elmendorf street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Court Santa Maria, No. 164. Daughters of Isabella, is completing arrangements for an entertainment and informal dance to be given in St. Mary's Hall on Wednesday evening, May 6. Tickets are for sale by the members.

The funeral of George Henry Haley, who died on Saturday, was held this morning at 8 o'clock from his late residence, 55 Cedar street, and from St. Joseph's Church at 9 o'clock. The interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Catherine, wife of Charles D. Kniffin, died on Friday at her home in Wurtsboro, aged 68 years. She was a daughter of Wesley Coddington and Phoebe J. Peck, who were among the early settlers of Cragmoor. Two sons, Frank W. and Robert B. Kniffin of Newburgh, and three daughters, Mrs. Edward Washburn of Wurtsboro, Mrs. A. Kindberg of Cragmoor and Bertha at home, survive.

Mrs. Mary A. Moffit, widow of Rufus Moffit and mother of Lawyer R. N. Moffit of Ellenville, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Frear, of Fairview avenue, Middletown, Monday morning of acute indigestion at the age of 78 years. Mr. and Mrs. Moffit were for many years well known citizens of Centerville Station where Mr. Moffit died several years ago. The funeral of Mrs. Moffit will be held at the home of her son, Wilson B. Moffit, at Wurtsboro on Wednesday and the burial will be made in family plot, in cemetery at Rock Hill.

Judge Augustus Goeller died at his home in the village of Athens last Saturday morning, aged about seventy years. The funeral services were held from his late residence this afternoon at two o'clock. Judge Goeller was born in Kingston and during his young manhood he worked for one of the newspapers of this city. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in one of the Kingston volunteer companies and served with distinction. He moved to Athens in the early seventies, and was married to the widow of John Van Loan, who survives him. There are no children. With the exception of one term Mr. Goeller had been justice of the peace for the village of Athens since the year 1885, and for many years prior to his death he had been police justice. He was a Democrat of the old school, a man of many splendid characteristics and was generally esteemed and admired by all who came in contact with him. For many years he had been connected with the Knights of Pythias and was a past chancellor of the Athens lodge. He was secretary of the Mount Hope Cemetery Association. Deceased in his younger days was a fine musician and was organizer of a band in Athens which for many years enjoyed a splendid reputation along the river.

Deckhand Badly Injured.

A Polish deckhand on the steamer M. Martin was nearly killed this morning when trucking at Poughkeepsie. An iron casting weighing 900 pounds fell from a truck and crushed in his breast. He was still alive when the boat left Poughkeepsie for this city and was taken to a hospital.

The Albany Sails.

The steamer Albany went to New York this morning and will be hauled out on dry dock at Hoboken for painting. The Washington Irving is expected to arrive at the Sunflower dock this evening.

Weiss is a Sailor.

Paul Weiss, son of Charles Weiss of West Pierpont street, is stationed on the Cincinnati, which is now in Mexican waters with the American fleet.

Greek Meets Greek.

A careful mother whose baby had fallen asleep in his carriage in the park found in seeking to make him comfortable that the sun was shining from one direction and a cold wind blowing from another. After careful consideration and numerous turnings she decided to risk his tightly closed eyes to a little sunshine rather than to expose him to the chilly breeze.

As she seated herself a stern voice spoke. "I don't know who your mistress is," it said, "but I shall make it my business to find out and report you to her. The idea of your risking this baby's eyes in that sunshine! I am a doctor's wife."

Several times did the careful mother attempt vainly to interrupt and explain. Then "I am grateful for your interest, madam," she said, "and I happen to be this child's mother. Also I too, am a doctor's wife and a nurse as well."

As the stern voice moved on she turned to another careful mother on the bench.

"I knew this coat was old," she said, "but do I look as bad as that?"—New York Post.

SOCIETY NOTES

This evening the Hummel violin recital will occur at the First Presbyterian Church at 8:15 o'clock, and will be a real treat to all music lovers.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Barbara Gwynn and Adelbert Chambers will take place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride on Linderman avenue.

Master Charles McCarthy entertained a score of his young friends at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. F. C. Snyder, on Ferry street Monday evening in honor of his tenth birthday. There were piano and violin selections by Miss Mamie Snyder and Vincent Van Bramer, and vocal solos by Samuel Weisman and Charles McCarthy, besides numbers on the Victrola. Games and refreshments were served and the young folks left about 10 o'clock well pleased with their entertainment.

The Brooklyn Eagle Says: Miss Anne Arundel Driscoll, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Henry Driscoll, of 243 Greene avenue, has broken off her engagement to Clarence Hiltrebrand of Kingston and Brooklyn. According to Mrs. Driscoll, who made the announcement, the engagement was broken as the result of a "serious difference between the two young people, which cannot be mended." Mrs. Driscoll stated that the breaking of the engagement is absolute and final. The announcement of the engagement of the couple was made at a card party and dance at the home of Mrs. Jay Beekly Smith, aunt of Miss Driscoll, at 195 Berkeley place, on the evening of Friday, January 30.

Monday Club

The Monday Club held its last meeting of the season this week at the home of Mrs. A. V. V. Kenyon. The election of officers resulted in a unanimous re-election of officers as follows: President, Mrs. DeWitt Roosa; vice-president, Mrs. Charles De La Vergne; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Everett Fowler. Subjects for papers for the ensuing year, on the topic, "Africa," with one day a month for American Music, were chosen. The club voted to give $6 to the Kingston City Library. This the club has done for several years, using our own library books for reference instead of being to the expense of sending to Albany for books. Arrangements were also completed for the club's entertaining the Federation of Women's Clubs at the last general meeting which will occur on Saturday afternoon, May 16, in the chapel of the First Dutch Church. The club has secured the Rev. Percy S. Grant of New York city, noted Episcopal clergyman, writer lecturer and traveler as the speaker of the occasion. This man of note will speak on "Poetry." An interesting letter was read from Mrs. Jessie C. Preston, who wrote from Florence, Italy, where she and Miss Ingraham spent Easter. Her description of the day, which is to the Italians what Christmas is to the Germans, was exceedingly interesting, as was her description of visits to smaller nearby places where customs of observing the day were found to be centuries old and very quaint. The entire month of April was expected to be spent in Florence by the Kingstons. The meetings of the club will now be discontinued until fall.

Instead of Assembly Dance.

It has been arranged between the young ladies, members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club, co-operating with the Assembly Dance committee, that the dance which is to follow the play, "The Elopement of Ellen," to be given at St. Joseph's Hall on Friday evening of this week, shall take the place of the customary Easter assembly dance. There will also be a buffet supper served during the evening, after the play and the price of tickets will cover the admission to the play, the dance and the supper, as has been the custom on former occasions when the club have given the tea dances.

"The Elopement of Ellen," a farce, with the accompanying dance is given for the benefit of further maintaining and supporting the Day Nursery at the federation house, a philanthropy which has already more than proved its right to existence of the public. The farce which will begin at 8:15 o'clock, has the following cast of characters:

Richard Ford, a devoted husband.—Thomas A. Horton. Mollie, Mr. Ford's wife.—Miss Dorothy Chipp. Robert Shepard, Mollie's brother.—Roger H. Loughran. Max Ten Eyck, a chum of Robert's.—Frederick S. Benedict. Dorothy March, engaged to Max and a guest in Mrs. Ford's home.—Miss Dorothy Schoonmaker. June Haverhill, Wellensley 15, doing special work in economics during the summer.—Miss Sarah Horton. John Hume, Rector of St. Agnes Church.—Christopher S. Snyder.

It is estimated that this aggregation of brilliant local players will so present this play that all who see it will be filled with a yearning to soon witness another exhibition of the skill of these clever actors. As a souvenir of the occasion programs with a special design by a member of the club will be on sale for a small sum of money. Members of the club will act as usherettes and be followed by the dance music being furnished by an orchestra of three pieces from the Kingston Symphony Society, Malsenholder, conducting. And it might well be stated that the younger musicians of today, such as make up this group are most expert in playing the music of the modern dances, with their unusual swing and rhythm.

Tickets for the evening's entertainment may be purchased from any of the following ladies members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club: The Misses Frances Preston, Sarah Horton, Dorothy Chipp, Eleanor Chipp, Doris Hasbrouck, Jeanette Sanford, Jane Van Etten, Kate Van Etten, Dorothy Schoonmaker, Margaret Loughran, Marjorie Drake, Mrs. G. Wallace Codwise and Mrs. William Warren; at the door, and at Burgin's, corner of Main and Fair streets. There is no doubt but that St. Joseph's Hall will be filled to its utmost capacity on Friday evening, every feature of the event having an interest to the people of Kingston.

On Friday evening, April 24, the members and friends of the Methodist Church tendered a reception to their new pastor, Rev. G. D. Fisher, and family. The gathering was held in the church parlors, which had been carefully prepared for the occasion. There was a large number of friends present who greeted the pastor and family warmly and gave expression of their good wishes. A choice collection of potted plants added beauty to the occasion. During the evening an orchestra of five pieces discoursed sweet music and last but not least delicious refreshments were served. The occasion was one long to be remembered. Mr. Fisher was formerly pastor of the Ashokan and West Hurley charge, and has many friends in this vicinity.

Derrenbacher-Alliger.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Katharine Alliger of 124 Downs street and Edward Derrenbacher of Broadway, which took place at Claverack Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Derrenbacher are enjoying a honeymoon trip to Ogdensburg and Canadian points.

Man's Possibilities.

Man is the crowning work of God on earth; but, though so nobly endowed, we must not forget that we are the lofty children of a race whose lowest forms lie prostrate within the water, having no higher aspiration than the desire for food. And we cannot understand the possible degradation and moral wretchedness of man without knowing that his physical nature is rooted in all the material characteristics that belong to his type and link him even with the fish. The moral and intellectual gifts that distinguish him from them are his to use or abuse. He may, if he will, abjure his better nature and be vertebrate more than man. He may sink as low as the lowest of his type, or he may rise to a spiritual height that will make that which distinguishes him from the rest far more the controlling element of his being than that which unites him with them.—Agnasiz.

Valor.

Blowhard sat discoursing upon valor to his ragged cronies. "I," he blew, "fear no man who lives." "But thou fearest me," rasped a midget vixen. "Home with thee!" Blue gilled, he followed his wife, the crowd loud jeering. Within she turned to those who soon filled the doorway. "Mark ye," she blew, "that it is I who fear no man!" "But thou fearest me," squeaked the littles mouse in the county. With a shriek of mad terror Dame Blowhard leaped chairward. Whereupon the merry beggars held their aching sides.—Lippincott's.

Making Montenegro.

The peasants of Montenegro have a quaint legend to account for the rock strewn appearance of their country. They will tell you that when the world was being created the Creator and the angel of creation were flying over chaos. The angel was carrying in a sack the rocks which were to make the mountains of the world when suddenly the sack burst, the rocks fell down, and—that is Montenegro!

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 28.—The most gruesome golf links in the world are in Tientsin, China, where a course is laid out in an immense graveyard.

"And it's a mighty good course, too," declares Major Palmer E.
Pierce, U. S. A., who returned recently from two years' infantry service in China. "The grave mounds serve as bunkers, the course is pretty level all the way round, and some mighty good scores are turned in."

"The custom in China is to place the coffins just below the surface of the ground, and form the dirt that was dug out of the grave into a mound on the top of the coffin. These grave mounds count as bunkers on this course, and because there are bunkers everywhere around the 18 hole course, it takes some mighty fine playing to get a good score."

"Very often during the course of a game, in such cases the golfers try to keep their balls away from the funeral party, but occasionally a player gets a poor drive and the ball bounds into an open grave. In cases where the ball falls into the grave it may be taken out without penalty."
"The greens are constructed between graves and they are as fine as on any course in America or England.

"The caddying charge is 5 cents for 18 holes, and nearly every day there are numerous fights among hordes of Chinese boys for the caddying privilege. The boys have learned the caddying business, and are just about as good at it as the American boys."

"Our club house, in one corner of the cemetery, is practically surrounded by graves, and, no doubt, is built on a foundation of human bones."

While on the subject of golf it might be well to mention that as the time draws near for the amateur and open tournaments in England, the British players are growing more apprehensive than even over their own chances of keeping the titles in their own hands.

The invasion of American golfers has increased to a point where it seems certain that at least a dozen of the best players from this side will contest with the English at Sandwich—Sandwich being the name of a town and not in any way referring to that which we eat.

Some weeks ago it was figured that only about five or six Americans could join in the battle against the host of English players. But, of a sudden, an extra half a dozen American golfers decided to make a try for the championship and sailed away to England.

Fraser Hale, a youthful Chicago golfer, was so keen about mixing up in the combat at Sandwich that he hired out as a sailor on a freighter, which he hopes will land him in England in sufficient time to permit him about a week's practice.

Here is the list of American golfers who now are in England, or are on their way there for the purpose of competing in the championships:

Francis Ouimet, American open champion; Jerome D. Travers, national amateur champion; Frederick Herschhoff, New York; Arthur G.
Lockwood, Boston; P. W. Whittemore, Boston; C. W. Insley, Oneida,
N. Y.; Henry Tompkins, Greenwich, Conn.; Fraser Hale, Chicago; Rodney Brown, Boston; Edward S.
Knapp, New York; and Harold Webber, Toledo, Ohio. It's still possible that "Chick" Evans, the Chicago star, and Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., who put up such a brilliant battle in England last year may make the trip.

In addition to this crowd of Americans it is likely that about six to ten more who are making their home in England will enter the tournament.

The Americans now in England have been getting in some beneficial practice on the different links, and have been familiarizing themselves with the Sandwich course. This course, so we are told by the British,
is a mighty difficult one, and one that would prove a stumbling block to the invading Americans. However, dispatches that have trickled in from time to time since the American contingent began practicing on the course, tell us that they have found it no harder than the standard links in the country.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 28.—The most gruesome golf links in the world are in Tienstin, China, where a course is laid out in an immense graveyard. "And it's a mighty good course, too," declares Major Palmer E. Pierce, U. S. A., who returned recently from two years' infantry service in China. "The grave mounds serve as bunkers, the course is pretty level all the way round, and some mighty good scores are turned in."

"The custom in China is to place the coffin just below the surface of the ground, and form the dirt that was dug out of the grave into a mound on the top of the coffin. These grave mounds count as bunkers on this course, and because there are bunkers everywhere around the 18 hole course, it takes some mighty fine playing to get a good score. "Very often during the course of a game some burials take place. Of course, in such cases the golfers try to keep their balls away from the funeral party, but occasionally a player gets a poor drive and the ball bounds into an open grave. In cases where the ball falls into the grave it may be taken out without penalty. "The greens are constructed between graves and they are as fine as on any course in America or England. "The caddy charge is 5 cents for 18 holes, and nearly every day there are numerous fights among hordes of Chinese boys for the caddy privilege. The boys have learned the caddy business, and are just about as good at it as the American boys."

"Our club house, in one corner of the cemetery, is practically surrounded by graves, and, no doubt, is built on a foundation of human bones."

While on the subject of golf it might be well to mention that as the time draws near for the amateur and open tournaments in England, the British players are growing more apprehensive than even over their own chances of keeping the titles in their own hands.

The invasion of American golfers has increased to a point where it seems certain that at least a dozen of the best players from this side will contest with the English at Sandwich—Sandwich being the name of a town and not in any way referring to that which we eat. Some weeks ago it was rumored that only about five or six Americans could join in the battle against the host of English players. But, of a sudden, an extra half a dozen American golfers decided to make a try for the championship and sailed away to England.

Fraser Hale, a youthful Chicago golfer, so keen about mixing up in the combat at Sandwich that he hired out as a sailor on a freighter, which he hopes will land him in England in sufficient time to permit him about a week's practice.

Here is the list of American golfers who now are in England, or are on their way there for the purpose of competing in the championships: Francis Ouimet, American open champion; Jerome D. Travers, national amateur champion; Frederick Herreshoff, New York; Arthur G. Lockwood, Boston; P. W. Whittemore, Boston; C. W. Inslee, Onondaga, N. Y.; Henry Tomlinson, Greenwich, Conn.; Fraser Hale, Chicago; Rodney Brown, Boston; Edward S. Knapp, New York; and Harold Webster, Toledo, Ohio. It is still possible that "Chick" Evans, the Chicago star, and Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., who put up such a brilliant battle in England last year may make the trip.

In addition to this crowd of Americans it is likely that about six to ten more who are making their home in England will enter the tournament.

The Americans now in England have been getting in some beneficial practice on the different links, and have been familiarizing themselves with the Sandwich course. This course, so we are told by the British, is a mighty difficult one, and one that would prove a stumbling block to the invading Americans. However, disatches that have trickled in from time to time since the American contingent began practicing on the course, tell us that they have found it no harder than the standard links in the country.
